

HIGH NOON IN SOUTHERN AFRICA

•
Making Peace in a Rough Neighborhood

Chester A. Crocker

W · W · NORTON & COMPANY

New York London

Contents

Foreword by George P. Shultz	11
Acknowledgments	13
Preface	17

PART I

1 A Mission to Accomplish	25
2 The Historical Setting	34
3 The U.S. Decision to Engage, 1981	58

PART II

4 Engaging the Allies and the South Africans, 1981	85
5 The Contact Group Engages the Africans, 1981–82	118

6	Engaging the Angolans, 1981–82	135
7	The Angolans Get Serious . . . and Scared, 1983	153
8	Breakthroughs and Opportunities, 1984	183
9	The Gathering Storm, 1984–85	214
10	The Exceptional Mozambicans	232

PART III

11	Sanctions and Sanctimony: The South Africa Debate of 1985	253
12	The Right Strikes Back, 1985–86	279
13	The Great Foreign Policy Robbery of 1986: South Africa Round Two	304

PART IV

14	Angola and the Art of Indecision, 1986–87	335
15	The Final Shoving Match, 1987–88	353
16	Getting the Parties to the Table, 1988	373
17	Reflections on the Endgame, 1988	392
18	The Road to Victory	425

PART V

19	Why U.S. Policy Succeeded	449
20	The Grand Strategy of Peacemaking: Thoughts from the Front Lines	465

Contents

9

Epilogue 483

Appendices: 495

1. Resolution 435, 1978 495

2. New York Principles, July 1988 499

3. The Geneva Protocol, 5 August 1988 501

4. The Brazzaville Protocol, 13 December 1988 503

5. Bilateral Agreement, 22 December 1988 506

6. Tripartite Agreement, 22 December 1988 509

Further Reading 512

Index 515