

After Reagan
Confronting
the Changed World Economy

C. Michael Aho
Marc Levinson

Council on Foreign Relations
New York

Contents

Foreword— Anthony M. Solomon	vii
Preface	xv
1. The Challenge	3
Capital Constraints	5
Dominance on the Wane	8
The New Realities	12
2. Macroeconomic Maladies	20
Living Beyond Our Means	21
Budget Balancing	25
Burden-Bearing or Burden-Sharing?	34
Getting Other Countries to Act	37
3. Managing the World's Money	45
How Much Do Exchange Rates Matter?	46
Alignment and Misalignment	50
Targeting the Dollar	53
Economic Coordination and Cooperation	56
4. Debt and Development	61
Debt Debacle	63
Initiatives by International Institutions	70
Foreign Aid's Future	74
An Opening for Trade	79
5. Trade Talks or Trade Tangles?	83
Multilateralism	87
Bilateral Alternatives	93
Unilateralism and the Next Trade Bill	95
Trade Tactics	100

6. The Sensitive Sectors	104
An Agricultural Agenda	108
Shaping Steel Trade	111
The Textile Tangle	115
Helping High Technology	118
7. The Human Element	124
Improving Living Standards	125
Enhancing Worker Mobility	130
How Will America Fare?	138
8. A Global Market for Money	141
Harmonization or Uniformity?	143
Regulating the Markets	148
Insurance Issues	151
The Global Financial Challenge	153
9. Who Owns America?	158
The Other Side of the Coin	162
The Foreign Takeover "Wave"	164
Security and Reciprocity	167
10. The Four Years Ahead	173
Priorities and Prescriptions for the Next President:
Members of the Study Group Speak Out	189
Robert D. Hormats on Matching Resources and Responsibilities	191
Leonard Silk on the Twin Deficits and National Security	201
Rimmer De Vries on the Need for Higher U.S. Savings	206
Lawrence A. Veit on the Case Against Excessive Pessimism	210
William D. Eberle on U.S. Trade Policy	215
Murray H. Finley on the Human Concerns	218
John R. Petty on U.S. Development Assistance	223
Bruce Stokes on Technology and Economic Policymaking	226
The Steering Committee, Council on Foreign Relations
International Trade Project	232
The Study Group, The Economic Choices Confronting The Next President	233
Index	235
About the Authors	245