Contents

List of Contributors ix
Preface xiii
Introduction xix
  by Jerry M. Williams and Robert E. Lewis

Part I Cultural Spaces

1. The Earliest European Views of the New World Natives 3
  by Angel Delgado-Gómez

2. The Cannibal Law of 1503  21
  by Michael Palencia-Roth

3. Writing and Evangelization in Sixteenth-Century Mexico 65
  by José Rabasa

4. Early English Transfer and Invention of the Black in New Spain  93
  by Carolyn Prager

Part II Mediating Political Discourse

5. Taking Possession and Reading Texts: Establishing the Authority of Overseas Empires 111
  by Patricia Seed
6. The Counter-Discourse of Bartolomé de Las Casas
   by Stephanie Merrim 149

7. Empowerment Through the Writing of History: Bartolomé de Las Casas's Representation of the Other(s) 163
   by Santa Arias

Part III Decoding the New World

8. The Representation of New World Phenomena: Visual Epistemology and Gonzalo Fernández de Oviedo's Illustrations 183
   by Kathleen A. Myers

   by Maureen Ahern

Part IV The Seductive Power of Science

10. American Discoveries Noted on the Planisphere of Sancho Gutiérrez 247
    by Harry Kelsey

11. Ptolemy's Geography and the New World 263
    by Oswald A. W. Dilke and Margaret S. Dilke

12. English Motifs in Mexican Books: A Case of Sixteenth-Century Information Transfer 287
    by Antonio Rodríguez-Buckingham

Index 305