

Argentina: From Anarchism to Peronism

Workers, Unions and Politics, 1855-1985

Ronaldo Munck
with
Ricardo Falcón
Bernardo Galitelli

Zed Books Ltd.
London and New Jersey

Contents

Glossary	vii
Preface	ix
Introduction	1
Politics	1
Method	2
History	7
1. Artisans, Mutual-Aid Societies and Socialism (1855-1870)	12
Immigrant workers	13
Early political developments	16
2. The First International in Argentina (1871-1876)	19
3. The Formation of the Proletariat	24
Mass immigration	25
The working class	26
The workers of Buenos Aires	29
Conditions of the working class	30
4. The Emergence of a Labour Movement (1877-1899)	34
First strikes and trade unions	34
Permanent class struggle	36
The general strike debate	38
Formation of the Socialist Party	39
5. Immigrants, Anarchists and General Strikes (1900-1910)	43
Immigrants and class unity	43
Women workers	45
Labour and the state	47
First trade union federation	49
General strikes	50
Labour politics	52
6. Political Reform and Labour Struggles (1911-1915)	57
Political reforms	57
Labour and the political reforms	59
Urban and rural strikes	63
Trade union unity	66

7. From the First World War to the Semana Tragica (1916-1921)	70
Composition of the working class	70
Effects of the war in Argentina	74
The labour movement and the war	76
Strikes under the Yrigoyen government (1916-1921)	81
The Semana Tragica of 1919	85
8. The Russian Revolution in Argentina	91
Diffusion	91
The Russian community	93
Assessment	94
Labour movement realignment	96
9. Syndicalists, Socialists and Communists (1922-1929)	99
Decline of the trade unions	101
Political developments	102
10. Labour Realignment and the Rise of Perón (1930-1944)	106
Transition period (1930-1935)	107
The Communist Party	111
Labour upsurge (1935-1942)	113
Labour politics	116
Reorientation (1943-1944)	118
Statism	120
Interpretations	121
11. Perón in Power and the Consolidation of the Trade Unions (1945-1955)	127
17 October 1945	127
Labour advances (1946-1950)	130
Trade union expansion	132
Strikes	135
Turn against labour (1951-1955)	137
Strikes	138
Bureaucratisation	140
12. Labour Resistance and Trade Union Bureaucracy (1956-1967)	147
Peronist Resistance (1955-1958)	147
The rise of Vandorismo (1959-1963)	152
Struggles and defeats (1964-1967)	158
13. The Cordobazo and a 'New' Working Class (1968-1972)	166
A labour aristocracy?	166
Towards the Cordobazo (1968-1969)	169
May 1969	171
General strikes (1969-1971)	174
Clasismo	177
Decompression (1972)	180

14. The Return of Peronism and Labour Divided (1973-1976)	187
'Campora to government, Perón to power' (May–September 1973)	187
Perón governs and dies (October 1973–June 1974)	192
Repression and Resistance (July 1974–September 1975)	195
Crisis and collapse (October 1975–March 1976)	200
15. Labour Recomposition and Trade Union Resistance (1976-1985)	207
Repression	207
Labour resistance (1976-1978)	212
Labour recovery (1979-1980)	215
Labour offensive (1981-1983)	219
Labour and democracy (1983-1985)	223
16. The Social History of Labour	230
Community	230
Culture	234
Consciousness	239
17. By Way of Conclusion	247
Select Bibliography	258

Tables

1.1	Migration to and from Argentina, 1885-1879	14
2.1	Occupational Categories	20
3.1	Employment by Sector, 1895	26
3.2	Industrial Employment, 1895	27
3.3	Primary goods processing, 1895	28
5.1	Strikes in Buenos Aires city, 1907-1910	52
6.1	Socialist Party results in Buenos Aires, 1910-1918	60
6.2	Socialist Party composition in Buenos Aires city, 1920	62
7.1	Industrial employment, 1914	71
7.2	National distribution of industry, 1895-1914	72
7.3	Migration to and from Argentina, 1903-1929	75
7.4	Conditions of the working class, 1914-1921	75
7.5	Strikes in Buenos Aires city, 1912-1922	84
9.1	Manufacturing industry, 1926	99
9.2	Strikes and wage rates in Buenos Aires city, 1919-1930	100
10.1	Strikes and strikers, 1926-1939	113
10.2	Strikes, days lost and union membership, 1934-1942	113
10.3	Results obtained by strikers over the total number of workers on strike, 1934-1939	114
10.4	Results of strikes according to size, 1935	114

10.5	Causes of strikes in selected areas, 1937-1943	115
10.6	Union membership, 1936-1941	115
10.7	Trade union meetings, 1935-1942	116
10.8	Strike volume and real wages in Buenos Aires, 1930-1944	124
11.1	Trade union members, 1941 and 1945	132
11.2	Real wages, 1943-1950	133
11.3	Strikes, strikers and days lost, 1940-1949	135
11.4	Strikes, strikers and days lost, 1945-1954	138
11.5	Trade union meetings, 1946-1954	138
11.6	Strike volume and real wages in Buenos Aires, 1945-1955	144
12.1	Workers employed in the metallurgical industry	157
12.2	Productivity in the metallurgical industry	158
12.3	Strike volume and real wages in Buenos Aires, 1956-1967	163
13.1	Rates of increase of wages and labour productivity in traditional and dynamic industries, 1950-1970	167
13.2	The top thirty trade unions, 1972	183
13.3	Strikes by region and sector, 1968-1972	184
14.1	Real wages and cost of living, 1973-1976	189
14.2	Strikes in Argentina, 1973-1976 by causes of dispute	204
15.1	Employment in selected firms, 1976-1981	208
15.2	Real industrial wage, 1976-1980	209
15.3	Strikes by sector, cause, measure taken and result, 1976-1980	229
16.1	Sources of social service funding in Argentina, 1976	233