

Thomas Miller Klubock

CONTESTED COMMUNITIES

---

Class, Gender, and Politics in Chile's

El Teniente Copper Mine, 1904–1951

Duke University Press   Durham and London   1998

CONTENTS

---

Preface vii

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction i

Part I

Gender and the Process of Proletarianization, 1904–1938 17

1 The Formation of a Modern Mining Enterprise 19
Capital, Labor Migration, and Early Forms of Worker Resistance

2 Labor Strife, Social Welfare, and the Regulation of Working-Class Sexuality 49

3 Community, Politics, and the Invention of a Labor
Tradition 81

Part II

Gender, Culture, and the Politics of Everyday Life 101

4 Miners and Citizens 103
The State, the Popular Front, and Labor Politics

5 Conflict and Accommodation at Work 127
Masculinity and the Labor Process inside the Mine

vi Contents

- 6 "Rotos Macanudos" and Football Stars 155
Popular Culture, Working-Class Masculinity, and Opposition in the Mining Camps
- 7 Women, Marriage, and the Organization of Sexuality 188

Part III

Men and Women on Strike: The Mining Community and the Demise of Populism, 1942-1948 223

- 8 Workers' Movements, Women's Mobilization, and Labor Politics 225
- 9 The Radicalization of Working-Class Politics 254
United States Intervention, Miners' Strikes, and the Crisis of Populism

Conclusion 282

Notes 297

Bibliography 337

Index 347