

Dancing
Into Darkness

*Butoh,
Zen,
and Japan*

Sondra
Horton
Fraleigh

University of Pittsburgh
Press

Dance
Books

Contents

Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction: The Difference the Other Makes	1
Forgotten Garden: Natsu Nakajima's Performance in Montreal	45
The Marble Bath: Ryokan in Takayama	55
My Mother: Kazuo Ohno's Class in Yokohama	57
Shibui and the Sublime: Sankai Juku's Performance in Toronto	65
My Mother's Face: Natsu Nakajima's Workshop in Toronto	87
Shards: Saburo Teshigawara's Performance in Toronto	97
Empty Land: Natsu Nakajima's Performance in New York	104
American Mother and Shinto: In Ohno Village	117
Liebe : Susanne Linke and Toru Iwashita	124
Beginner's Body: Yoko Ashikawa's Class in Tokyo	139
Tree: Min Tanaka's Choreography in Tokyo	151
Amazing Grace: Kazuo Ohno's Performance in Yokohama	158
Hot Spring: In Hakone Yumoto	163

The Waters of Life: Kazuo Ohno's Workshop in Yokohama	164
How I Got the Name "Bright Road Friend": With Zen Teacher Shodo Akane in Tsuchiura	166
The Existential Answer: Interview with Butoh Critic Nario Goda in Tokyo	171
Hokohtai, the Walking Body: Yoko Ashikawa's Performance in New York	177
Dance and Zen, Kyo Ikiru : With Zen Teacher Shodo Akane in Tokyo	180
Prose and Haiku on Japan	186
Post-Butoh Chalk: Annamirl Van der Pluijm's Performance in Montreal	195
Dust and Breath: Sankai Juku's Performance in Toronto	199
The Hanging Body: Joan Laage's Performance in Brockport, New York	209
Zen and Wabi-Sabi Taste: Setsuko Yamada's Performance in Toronto	214
The Community Body: Akira Kasai and Yumiko Yoshioka	228
Notes	251
Selected Bibliography	261
Index	265