

NARRATIVE

A Critical Linguistic Introduction

MICHAEL J. TOOLAN

ROUTLEDGE
London and New York

Contents

SERIES EDITOR'S INTRODUCTION TO THE INTERFACE SERIES	ix
PREFACE	xiii
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	xvii
1 Preliminary orientations	1
2 Basic story structure	12
2.1 Story/Fabula/Histoire	12
2.2 Propp's morphology of the Russian fairytale	14
2.3 Barthes on narrative	20
2.4 Plot-summarizing: modelling intuitions	28
2.5 On comparing, evaluating, and falsifying theories of story	31
2.6 In search of the grammaticization of plot structure	33
FURTHER READING	39
NOTES AND EXERCISES	39
3 The articulation of narrative text I: time, focalization, narration	47
3.1 Narrative text: a single level of analysis	47
3.2 Text and time	48
3.2.1 Order	49
3.2.2 Duration	55
3.2.3 Summary and scene	57
3.2.4 Frequency	61
3.3 Temporal refractions in text: Nabokov's Pnin	62
3.4 Focalization	67
3.4.1 Types of focalization	69
3.4.2 Facets of focalization?	72
3.5 Perceptual focalization as primary	74
3.6 Narrators and narration	76
3.6.1 Implied author: a position but not a role	77
3.6.2 Narratees and implied readers	78

vi Contents

3.7	Relations between story and narration	81
3.8	A typology of narrators	82
	FURTHER READING	83
	NOTES AND EXERCISES	84
4	The articulation of narrative text II: character, setting, free indirect discourse	90
4.1	Character	90
4.2	Greimas' actant model	93
4.3	Character traits and attributes	97
4.4	Distinctive feature characterology	99
4.5	Setting	103
4.6	Character and setting in 'The Dead'	106
4.7	The grammaticization of character and situation	111
4.8	Achieving immediacy in the narration of thoughts	116
4.9	Direct and indirect discourse	119
4.10	Free indirect discourse	122
4.11	Who speaks, who thinks?	125
4.12	FID: functions and effects	127
4.13	Banfield's theory of unspeakable sentences	129
	FURTHER READING	137
	NOTES AND EXERCISES	139
5	Narrative as socially situated: the sociolinguistic approach	146
5.1	Labov and narrative structure	146
5.2	Fixed narrative clauses, free evaluative clauses	148
5.3	Abstracts and orientations	153
5.4	Evaluation	156
5.5	Doing and saying	157
5.6	Internal evaluation	160
5.7	Coda	161
5.8	Stories in societies	164
5.9	Narrative performance	165
5.10	Diffuse, embedded, and group oral narratives	169
5.11	From Labov to literature	174
	FURTHER READING	176
	NOTES AND EXERCISES	177
6	Children's narratives	183
6.1	Stories for, by and with children	183

6.2	Storytelling and emergent literacy	185
6.3	Differing styles, differing orientations	187
6.4	Children's narrative development	193
6.5	Narrative in relation to other registers: the systemic-linguistic approach	202
6.6	Stories for and with children	209
	FURTHER READING	216
	NOTES AND EXERCISES	217
7	Narrative as political action	226
7.1	The contexts of narratives	226
7.2	Political narratives in the news	228
7.3	The linguistic apparatus of political emphasis: notes on the basic toolkit	238
7.4	Stories of class and gender	245
7.5	Prejudice in ethnic narratives	247
7.6	Stories in court	249
	FURTHER READING	255
	NOTES AND EXERCISES	256
	GLOSSARY	263
	BIBLIOGRAPHY	269
	INDEX	279