

A THEOLOGY OF RECONSTRUCTION

Nation-building and human rights

CHARLES VILLA-VICENCIO

*Professor of Religion and Society,
University of Cape Town*

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

General editors' preface	page xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction	I
Contextual demands	3
Giving life to pale theory	4
A theology of reconstruction	7
Theology and law	9
Learning from the past	13
Gender and race	15
The book in outline	17
1 Theology and nation-building	19
The post-exilic church	23
Locating the church	30
A new theological responsibility	32
The political task of theology	37
Towards a nation-building theology	39
Social analysis	40
Cultural empowerment	42
Liberation	46
Democratisation	46
Behold, a new thing	48
2 The weight of dead generations	49
Law-making and nation-building	51
The moral burden of law	53
The British parliamentary heritage	55
South African law-making	60
Parliamentary supremacy	61

	Law as repression	66
	Executive rule	69
	The burden weighs heavily	71
3	The rule of law: searching for values	76
	Politics as the art of living together	77
	Two notions of human dignity	82
	Two traditions of law-making	85
	Legal positivism	88
	Value-based law	93
	Critique of the rule of law	98
	When is a minimum too much?	102
	Authority as event	109
	A theological observation	113
4	Human rights and theology	117
	Why theology?	121
	The ecumenical debate	131
	Roman Catholic rights theory	131
	Protestant teaching on human rights	137
	Towards theological consensus on human rights	150
5	Transcending individualism and collectivism: a theological contribution	154
	A theological understanding of human rights	156
	What is a human right?	157
	Personal and social renewal	162
	Commitment and critique	163
	A new vision of humanity	164
	A communal vision	164
	A universal vision	174
	An ecological vision	177
	An inclusive vision	180
	A pastoral imperative	181
	Which rights when?	186
	How broad is too broad?	192
	Human rights by what process?	195
6	Theology and political economy	197
	Rhetoric and discontent	199
	Ownership and usage	201
	Theology and political economy	204

	Laissez-faire capitalism	209
	Scientific socialism	220
	Christianity and Marxism	224
7	Theology and economic justice	231
	Towards an alternative vision	231
	A theological check list	238
	Damn your charity – we want justice	243
	What is to be done?	248
	By what power?	251
8	The right to believe	254
	The social significance of religion	255
	Learning from our past	262
	The separation of religion and state,	264
	The political responsibility of religion	268
	The right to resist	272
9	An unconcluding postscript	274
	A methodology in outline	275
	Analysis	275
	Theory	276
	Interdisciplinary	276
	Inter-faith dialogue	277
	Constructive	278
	A corporate process	278
	Participatory and democratic	279
	Values and action	280
	Bibliography	285
	Index	296