

RADICAL SATIRE
AND
PRINT CULTURE
1790–1822

MARCUS WOOD

CLARENDON PRESS · OXFORD

1994

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	xī
List of Abbreviations	xv
Introduction: The Potatoes Speak for Themselves	i
1. Advertising, Politics, and Parody 1710–1780	18
2. Eaton, Spence, and Modes of Radical Subversion in the Revolutionary Era	57
3. Radicals and the Law: Blasphemous Libels and the Three Trials of William Hone	96
4. Radical Puffing: Parodic Advertising and Newspapers	155
5. The Political House that Jack Built : Children's Publishing and Political Satire	215
Conclusion: Satire, Radicalism, and Radical Romanticism	264
Appendix: A Transcription of the Original Manuscript Version of The Late John Wilkes's Catechism of a Ministerial Member	272
Bibliography	291
Index	313