

RHODA E. HOWARD

Human Rights
in Commonwealth
Africa

ROWMAN & LITTLEFIELD
Publishers

Contents

Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
1: The Human Rights Background	1
The United Nations Definition of Human Rights	2
The African Charter of Human and Peoples' Rights	4
Human Rights under Colonial Rule	9
The Argument in Brief	11
Notes	14
2: Cultural Relativism, Social Change, and Human Rights	16
An African Concept of Human Rights?	17
Culture and Social Change	23
Modernization and the Creation of the Individual	27
Conclusion	33
Notes	34
3: Social Structure, the State, and Human Rights	37
Peripheral Capitalist Society	38
The African Ruling Class	45
Class, State, and Power	53
Notes	57
4: Economic Rights	60
The Substance of Economic Rights	61
Causes of Underdevelopment	68
The New International Economic Order	78
Class, Development, and Rights	83
Notes	85
5: State Formation and Communal Rights	90
Ethnicity and "Tribalism"	91
Citizens, Aliens, and Mass Expulsions	99
Religious Tolerance and State Security	107
Conclusion	112
Notes	113

6: Political Rights	119
Freedom of Expression and Association	120
Trade Unions	128
Electoral Politics	133
The One-Party Model	140
Notes	144
7: Civil Rights and the Rule of Law	151
Preventive Detention	152
State Terrorism	159
Constitutionalism and the Rule of Law	164
Some Innovations in Legal Practice	172
Notes	177
8: Women's Rights	184
Political Rights of Women	186
Women and the Political Economy	188
Law and Custom: Women's Rights in the Personal Sphere	195
Female Genital Operations	202
Notes	206
9: Summary and Assessment	212
Summary	212
The Human Rights Debates	218
The Future	223
Notes	230
Bibliography	231
Index	241