

AIDŌS

The Psychology and Ethics of Honour and Shame in Ancient Greek Literature

DOUGLAS L. CAIRNS

CLARENDON PRESS • OXFORD

1993

CONTENTS

Abbreviations	xv
Introduction	i
0.1. General
0.2. Aidōs and Emotion
0.3. Shame and Guilt
0.4. Shame-Culture and Guilt-Culture
1. Aidōs in Homer	48
1.1. How Things Look and What People Say
1.2. Aidōs in Battle
1.3. Aidōs towards Others: The Cement of Homeric Society
1.4. Aidōs , Women, and Sex
1.5. Aidōs , 'Intelligence', and Excess
1.6. Other Terms
1.7. Conclusion
2. From Hesiod to the Fifth Century	147
2.1. Hesiod
2.2. The Homeric Hymns
2.3. Elegiac and Iambic Poets
2.4. Pindar
3. Aeschylus	178
3.1. General
3.2. Crucial Passages
3.3. The Rejection of Aidōs
3.4. Aidōs and Sebas
4. Sophocles	215
4.1. General
4.2. Ajax , Electra , Philoctetes
5. Euripides	265
5.1. Personal Honour and Status
5.2. Friends, Suppliants, and Guests
5.3. Honour, Reputation, Retrospective Shame, and Guilt
5.4. Sexuality and the Sexes
5.5. The Importance of Aidōs	