

MODERN LATIN AMERICAN
REVOLUTIONS

Eric Selbin
SOUTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

Westview Press
BOULDER • SAN FRANCISCO • OXFORD

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
1 Social Revolution and the Role of the Individual	1
The Literature on Revolution, 5
Social Revolution: A Definition, 11
Paths to Success: The Institutionalization and Consolidation of Social Revolution, 13
Revolution and the Role of the Individual, 27
2 Social Revolutionary Paths: Bolivia, Cuba, Nicaragua, and Grenada	33
Popular Support and Consolidation, 35
Bolivia, 1952–1956: Institutionalization Without Consolidation, 37
Cuba, 1959–1969: Consolidation Without Institutionalization, 43
Nicaragua, 1979–1990: Institutionalization and Consolidation, 51
Grenada, 1979–1983: The Revolution That Never Was, 59
Conclusion: The Importance of Consolidation, 70
3 Social Revolutionary Leadership: Ideology and Strategy	73
Visionary and Organizational Leadership, 76
Antipathy for the Revolution: The International Situation, 96
Leadership and the Transformation of Society, 98

4 Making the Revolution Reality: The Nicaraguan Revolution, 1979–1990	101
Consolidation in the Nicaraguan Revolution, 102
Institutionalization Redux: The International and Domestic Context of the 1990 Election, 114
The Nexus of Institutionalization and Consolidation: The 1990 Election Participants and Strategies, 122
5 Bringing People Back In: Exploring Revolutionary Processes	137
The Theoretical Themes, 137
The Practical Utility, 141
The Consolidation of Social Revolution, 150
Notes	153
Selected Bibliography	217
List of Acronyms	227
About the Book and Author	229
Index	231