

THE UNIVERSAL JEW

MASCULINITY,
MODERNITY,
AND THE
ZIONIST
MOMENT

MIKHAL DEKEL

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY PRESS
EVANSTON, ILLINOIS

CONTENTS

	Acknowledgments	ix
	Introduction: Man-Jew-Woman	3
PART I	Jewish Men, Universal Women: Novel, Nation, and Creation in Daniel Deronda
Chapter 1	Jews, Modernity, and the End of the European Bildungsroman	39
Chapter 2	On Woman and Nation in the Late Nineteenth Century	63
Chapter 3	“Who Taught This Foreign Woman About the Ways and Lives of the Jews?”: George Eliot and the Hebrew Renaissance	79
PART II	Fin-de-siècle Imagi-nation of a Liberal Public Sphere in Palestine
Chapter 4	Herzl’s Old New Land	95
PART III	The Tragedy of Zionism
Chapter 5	Nationhood and the Birth of Jewish Tragedy at the Fin de Siècle: A Quick Overview	133
Chapter 6	Kishinev and the Making of a Jewish Tragedy	139
Chapter 7	“Nietzsche: I Want to Become One”	169
Chapter 8	Masculinity, Tragedy, and the Nation-State	205
	An Autobiographical Postlude: Woman, Tragedy, and the Making of the Universal Jew	225
	Notes	237

Selected Bibliography	247
Index	263