

Policy Studies Institute

GOVERNMENTS
AND TRADE UNIONS

The British Experience, 1964-79

DENIS BARNES and EILEEN REID

Heinemann Educational Books · London

Contents

Acknowledgements	viii
Introduction	ix
PART I 1870-1964
1 Background, 1870-1951	3
The growth of trade union power, 1870-1920	3
Confrontation and failure, 1920-40	4
The foundations of post-war power, 1940-45	8
The Attlee Governments, 1945-51	13
Legacies of coalition and partnership, 1940-51	18
2 Free Collective Bargaining, Conciliation and Inflation, 1951-64	20
Industrial peace, 1951-55	20
The search for wage restraint, 1955-59	25
One nation, incomes policy and a guiding light, 1959-64	33
The early 1960s: a summary of the position	40
PART II HAROLD WILSON, 1964-70 - 'THE NEW BRITAIN'
3 Partnership: the First Phase, October 1964-September 1965	47
The hopes and promises of the Wilson Government, October-1964	47
The response to current difficulties	52
Preparing for an agreed voluntary incomes policy and a national plan	54
The development of the prices and incomes policy	57
The government changes the rules	63
Industrial relations	66
The end of the first period of partnership	69
4 Partnership: the Second Phase, September 1965-July 1966	71
Incomes policy and the railways	71
The economic situation and the election of March 1966	75
The seamen's strike, economic 'crisis' and TUC support	76

	The prices and incomes standstill, a statutory incomes policy and the end of the partnership	79
5	Co-existence: July 1966–December 1967	83
	A 'temporary interruption' of the partnership	83
	A second unilateral statement on incomes policy	85
	Industrial relations and devaluation	89
	Industrial relations: the Donovan Commission and Conservative proposals for reform	94
	The positions of government and unions, late 1967	95
6	Deflation and Disagreement, 1968	99
	Incomes policy: firmness and flexibility	99
	A new department and a new minister	101
	Industrial and political difficulties	102
7	A 'Deep and Fundamental Split', 1969	106
	The Donovan Report	106
	Reactions to the Donovan Report	110
	The government's proposals: In Place of Strife	112
	The reactions of the General Council to In Place of Strife	115
	Political reactions to In Place of Strife	117
	A Bill to reform industrial relations	119
	The defeat of Wilson and Castle	123
	Re-uniting the movement – and the next election	126
PART III EDWARD HEATH, 1970–74 – 'A NEW STYLE OF GOVERNMENT'
8	Industrial Relations Legislation and Confrontation, June 1970–February 1972	131
	A 'new style' of government	131
	The change in Conservative attitude: wages and incomes policy	132
	The change in Conservative attitude: industrial relations	134
	The Industrial Relations Bill and union reaction	137
	The Industrial Relations Act	141
	The trade union attack on the Act	144
	Wage claims: 'giving a lead'	145
	Wage claims: de-escalation and confrontation	148
9	'Backing and Filling', March–August 1972	155
	A change of policy	155
	Government and union objectives	157

	The Industrial Relations Act in operation	159
	Preparing for a return to incomes policy	163
10	Conciliation, a Statutory Incomes Policy and Confrontation, September 1972–February 1974	166
	A new style of government, revised version	166
	Incomes policy: the standstill	170
	Incomes policy: Stage Two and success	172
	Incomes policy: Stage Three, 'unacceptable and probably unworkable'	174
	Confrontation and indecision	178
	'Who governs the country?'	182
PART IV JACK JONES, 1972–79 – 'A NEW SOCIAL CONTRACT'
11	Collective Bargaining and Inflation	191
	The origins of the 'new social contract', 1972–74	191
	The flowering of the social contract – or winning the next election	195
	Collective Bargaining and the Social Contract: the TUC policy, October 1974–June 1975	201
	The conversion of Jack Jones	203
12	The Death of the Social Contract	209
	Partnership and pay policy	209
	Free collective bargaining and a government pay policy	212
	The destruction of the government's policy	215
	The Joint Statement of February 1979	217
	Prospects	221
	Appendix 1 List of Official Papers Cited and Other Publications	229
	Appendix 2 Annual Rate of Change of Wage Rates, Retail Prices and Gross Domestic Product, 1946–78	231
	Index	233
	Index of Acronyms	241