
POLITICS • IN • CONTEMPORARY

PORTUGAL

PARTIES AND THE CONSOLIDATION OF DEMOCRACY

THOMAS C. BRUNEAU • ALEX MACLEOD

LYNNE RIENNER PUBLISHERS • BOULDER, COLORADO

Tables and Figures

Tables

0.1	What Should the Portuguese Be Most Proud Of?	9
2.1	Potential for Coalitions, 1976-1983	28
2.2	How Many Parties Should the Country Have?	33
2.3	What are the Goals or Objectives That Are Most Important for Political Parties?	33
2.4	Which Institution Is Most Necessary for Portugal to Be Democratic?	34
2.5	Do You Follow News and Information Concerning Politics and Government?	35
2.6	Results of Elections for the Assembly of the Republic, 1976-1985	36
2.7	Involvement or Participation in Party Activities	37
2.8	National and Regional Evolution of Party Vote and Abstention in Assembly Elections, 1975-1983	38
2.9	Voting in 1983 Assembly Election by Party Voted for in 1976	40
2.10	Voting in 1983 Assembly Election by Party Voted for in 1980	41
2.11	Ideological Tendency Identified Within Relationship to Party Voted for in 1983 Assembly Elections.	43
3.1	How APU and PS Voters Perceive the PCP	50
3.2	How APU and PS Voters Perceive the PS	50
4.1	Profession or Occupation of Members of the PSD and CDS in 1983	83

4.2	Distribution of Members of the PSD and CDS by Socio-Professional Strata	84
4.3	Profession or Occupation of Leaders of the PSD and CDS in 1983	85
4.4	Distribution of Leaders of the PSD and CDS by Socio-Professional Strata	86
4.5	Left-Right Positions of the Four Main Parties	88
4.6	Which Governments or Regimes Governed, or Govern, the Country Best, 1978	93
4.7	Which Governments or Regimes Governed, or Govern, the Country Best, 1984	94
4.8	Political Tendency Identified With?	95
4.9	How PSD and CDS Voters Perceive the PSD	96
4.10	How PSD and CDS Voters Perceive the CDS	96
5.1	What Type of Group or Association Are You Involved With?	100
5.2	Do You Consider Yourself Religious?	113
5.3	Which of These Do You Practice With a Certain Frequency?	114
7.1	Who or What Institution Really Governs the Country?	129
7.2	In Comparison to the Government: Should the President Have More, Less, or Equal Power?	130
7.3	Which of These Institutions Have Contributed Most to Defend Liberty and Democracy in Portugal?	131
8.1	Why Do You Consider the Assembly Extremely or Very Necessary?	154
8.2	Why Do You Consider the Assembly Not Very Necessary or Unnecessary?	155
10.1	Portugal: Components of Gross Product, 1973-1983	183

10.2	Participation of the Public Sector in Portugal's Economy Before and After the Revolution, by Industry or Branch	184
10.3	Weight of Public Enterprises in the Economy	189
10.4	Sources of Financing for the Public-Enterprise Sector	190
10.5	Financial Predicament of the Public-Enterprise Sector	191
10.6	Value Added of Public-Enterprise Sector	192
E.1	First Ballot of the Presidential Elections, 26 January 1986	208
E.2	First Ballot of the Presidential Elections, 16 February 1986	210
E.3	Percentages of Vote Totals, Both Ballots, January, February, 1986	211
A2.1	Comparative Indicators (1980)	216
A2.2	Portugal Public Enterprises	217
Chart A2.1	Structural Development of Portuguese Industry	2 20

Figures

2.1	Evolution of the Vote, Assembly of the Republic, 1975–1983	39
2.2	Percentage of Voters Who Voted for Same Party in Prior Elections	42
3.1	PCP Leadership Structure	59
3.2	PS Leadership Structure	68
4.1	PSD Leadership Structure	81
4.2	CDS Leadership Structure	82