

PATRONS AND POWER
CREATING A POLITICAL COMMUNITY
IN METROPOLITAN LAGOS

Sandra T. Barnes

MANCHESTER UNIVERSITY PRESS
for the INTERNATIONAL AFRICAN INSTITUTE, London

CONTENTS

| | |
|--|------|
| Lists of maps, tables and figures | viii |
| Preface | ix |
| | |
| 1 Introduction | |
| The distribution of power in contemporary Africa | 2 |
| Patterns of political activity | 4 |
| The client paradigm | 7 |
| The setting | 11 |
| Plan of the book | 15 |
| | |
| 2 The making of Mushin | |
| The eve of colonial takeover: 1850–61 | 19 |
| Early colonial administration: 1861–1927 | 23 |
| Administrative neglect | 29 |
| Unofficial authorities: the village Baale and the Baba Isale | 31 |
| Late colonial administration: 1927–55 | 36 |
| First steps toward unifying Mushin villages | 39 |
| Unofficial authorities: the emergence of settler leaders | 43 |
| | |
| 3 Land and housing as sources of power | |
| Competition for urban land | 47 |
| The legal background to competition for urban land | 50 |
| The economics of land and housing | 55 |
| The case of Timothy Abiola | 56 |
| The case of I. A. Adeyemi | 57 |
| The social benefits of owning urban property | 61 |
| The descent group | 61 |
| The nuclear and extended families | 65 |
| The community | 66 |
| The status of owners | 67 |
| | |
| 4 The residential basis of leadership | |
| Neighbourhood interaction | 71 |
| Patterns of neighbourhood support | 75 |
| Bases of neighbourhood power | 76 |
| Leadership roles | 78 |
| Dimensions of the dispute-settler role | 85 |
| Dimensions of the patron and middleman roles | 88 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| Leadership skills | 93 |
| Converting non-political resources into political capital | 95 |
| 5 The chieftaincy system | |
| The birth of a chieftaincy system | 98 |
| Chieftaincy politics in the party era | 103 |
| Chieftaincy politics under the military government | 105 |
| The structure and function of the chieftaincy system | 109 |
| The problems of urban chiefs | 120 |
| The contemporary meaning of chieftaincy | 122 |
| 6 The consolidation of leadership | |
| Community leadership: the institutional route to the top | 126 |
| Local government | 128 |
| Political parties | 130 |
| The pyramiding of power | 135 |
| The role of the public in political processes | 143 |
| The emergence of a political machine | 145 |
| Responses to the contraction of power | 147 |
| Explanations for survival | 153 |
| 7 The role of factions in the struggle for power | |
| The local response to military rule | 157 |
| The political importance of markets | 159 |
| Factionalism in markets | 163 |
| Market conflict: episode one | 163 |
| Market conflict: episode two | 167 |
| Market conflict: episode three | 171 |
| Market conflict: episode four | 177 |
| Factionalism in Mushin | 180 |
| 8 The institutionalisation of power | |
| Title-giving and title-receiving in the mobilisation of support | 184 |
| Chieftaincy conflict: episode one | 186 |
| Public legitimisation of unofficial authority | 192 |
| Chieftaincy conflict: episode two | 192 |
| Shifting alliances | 194 |
| Bureaucratic legitimisation of unofficial authority | 196 |
| 9 Conclusions | |
| Political problems of urban settlers | 202 |

| | |
|--|------------|
| Particular and universal aspects of clientelism | 204 |
| Political advantages of individually-contracted ties | 205 |
| Political advantages of instrumental and moral ties | 207 |
| Political advantages of reciprocity | 210 |
| The organising powers in client relationships | 213 |
| Organising diversity | 213 |
| Centralising power | 215 |
| The perpetuation of power | 216 |
| | |
| Epilogue | 220 |
| | |
| Appendix: Methods of research | 223 |
| Notes | 227 |
| Bibliography | 243 |
| Index | 252 |