

Revolutionary Horizons

Regional Foreign Policy in Post-Khomeini Iran

John Calabrese

*Visiting Assistant Professor
Bowdoin College, Maine*

M

St. Martin's Press

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
List of Abbreviations	x
Map of the Middle East	xii
Introduction	1
1 National Security and Foreign Policy	3
The Elusiveness of 'National Security'	3
The 'National Security' of Iran	6
2 Between Fear and Ambition	23
The Political Foundations of Policy Change	23
The Economic Policy of the Second Republic	29
Iran's Defence Policy	34
Conundrums and Contradictions	43
3 Iran and the Arab Gulf States	45
Pre-Revolutionary Partnerships and Rivalries	45
Targets of Revolution and Prisoners of War	48
Restoring and Expanding Relations	51
New Features of a Familiar Pattern	57
Normalisation without Trust	73
4 Central Asia and the Transcaucasus	75
The Historical Context	75
A Thickening Web of Interaction	81
Competition and Co-operation with Turkey	103
Frontiers of Capitalism	107
5 Reaching Eastward	112
'Great Game' to Cold War	112
Iran's Relations with Pakistan	115
Iran's Relations with Afghanistan	130
Shifting Foundations of Co-operation	142

6	Revolution and Solidarity	144
	The Revolutionary Mission	144
	Nurturing Islamic Solidarity	159
	The Good Neighbour is the Villain	162
	Conclusion	164
	Appendix Tables	170
	Notes and References	177
	Bibliography	203
	Index	218