

The Capitalist Revolution in Eastern Europe

A Contribution to the Economic Theory of Systemic Change

---

László Csaba

STUDIES OF COMMUNISM IN TRANSITION

Edward Elgar

Contents

---

Preface	vii
Part I: Setting the Task
1 A Crisis of Transformation, or Systemic Change in Times of Crisis?	3
Part II: The Environment
2 Prehistory: The Eclipse of the Empire	25
3 Long-term Constraints on Transformation	51
4 Stabilization and Transformation: A Strange Couple	76
Part III: Salient Features of Systemic Change
5 What is Transformation?	99
6 Is Transformation an Optimization Exercise?	121
7 Economic Theory and Systemic Change	143
8 Economic Policy in Systemic Change: A Search for New Ways	161
Part IV: Individual Case Studies
9 On Hungarian Gradualism	183
10 Russia: A Showcase of Failed Shocks?	209
Part V: The International Dimension
11 Integration and Transformation	245
12 Eastern Europe: What Kind of Capitalism?	268
Part VI: Review and Prospects
13 Towards a Theory of Transformation	295
Bibliography	303
Index	327