

Economic Planning in Transition

Socio Economic Development and Planning in Post-Socialist and Capitalist Societies

Edited by
JÁNOS KOVÁCS
Institute of Economics
Hungarian Academy of Sciences and
BRUNO DALLAGO
Department of Economics
University of Trento

Dartmouth

Aldershot · Brookfield USA · Hong Kong · Singapore · Sydney

Contents

PREFACE	7
ABOUT THE AUTHORS	9
Tae-Ho Yoo: FOREWORD	11
INTRODUCTION by János Kovács and Bruno Dallago	13
PART I – THEORETICAL PROBLEMS OF PLANNING	25
1. Adám Schmidt: Plans, their relatives and their concurrents	27
2. Janusz Stacewicz: Central planning at the crossroads	33
3. János Kovács: Regulative planning	41
4. Péter Á. Bod: The troublesome micro-macro link in an economy with national planning: Hungary	51
PART II – THE TRADITIONAL WAY OF PLANNING	59
5. Pavel Belousov: Perestroika in socio-economic planning in the Soviet Union	61
6. Martin Kornek: How to use commodity-money relations in the socialist planned economy of the GDR	69
7. Veselin Nikiforov: The development of society and planning	73

PART III – RADICAL CRITICS - REFORMS	79
8. Józsefné Huszár: On macroeconomic planning - an alternative approach	81
9. Karel Dyba and Tomas Jezek: Czechoslovak experience with central planning	89
10. Pavel Kysilka: The problems and outlooks of the Czechoslovak reform	103
11. Jakov Sirotkovic: Planning of socio-economic development in socialist Yugoslavia	109
12. Marjan Senjur: The role of planning in the process of structural adjustment in Yugoslavia 1988-1989	117
 PART IV – PLANNING IN CAPITALIST AND MIXED ECONOMIES	 129
13. György Tényi: Socio-economic roots of French planning	131
14. András Semjén: Norway: planning in a welfare state	143
15. István Kiglics: Planning in Japan	155
16. Éva Kigyóssy: Some aspects of macroeconomic control in the Federal Republic of Germany	165
17. Bruno Dallago: Macroeconomic planning in Italy: Experiences and failures	173
18. John B. Hall: Macroeconomic planning and dependency reversal in the Republic of Korea	187
 PART V – TOWARDS A NEW PARADIGM	 199
19. Janos Hoós: The planning reform in Hungary	201
20. Ottó Gadó: Planning, regulation and deregulation	209
21. Gusztáv Báger: Coordination and coherence in national planning	213
22. Andrzej Karpinski: Changes in the role of planning in Poland	225