Re-Presenting Texts

Jewish and Black Biblical Interpretation

Edited by
W. David Nelson
Rivka Ulmer

gorgias press
2013
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Table of Contents..................................................................................................................v
Introduction ..........................................................................................................................vii

1. Eurocentrism: The Tie That Binds Black Christian and White Jewish Biblical Scholarship..........................................................1
   W. David Nelson

2. The Noahic Curse in Rabbinic Literature:
   Racialized Hermeneutics or Ethnocentric Exegesis .........................15
   Jamal-Dominique Hopkins

3. Translating Rabbinic Texts on the Curse of Ham:
   What We Learn from Charles Copher and His Critics ...............29
   Rebecca Alpert

4. It Does Matter If You’re Black or White,
   Too-Black or Too-White, But Mestizo is Just Right...............43
   Wil Gafney

5. Response to W. David Nelson, Wil Gafney,
   Jamal-Dominique Hopkins, and Rebecca Alpert .....................53
   Stacy Davis

6. Rejoinder: Black and Jewish Hermeneutics .................................65
   Rivka Ulmer

7. Preempting the Redemption: The Bones of the Ephraimites and the Messianic Pretender in Midrash........................................77
   Rachel Adelman

8. The Poetry of Creation: Zevadiah and Amittai’s
   Yotzeret le-Hatan (“Groom’s Yotzeret”)......................................103
   Laura Lieber