

KINGS AND COLONISTS

Aspects of Macedonian Imperialism

BY

RICHARD A. BILLOWS

E.J. BRILL
LEIDEN · NEW YORK · KÖLN
1995

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	ix
List of Illustrations	xi
Abbreviations	xii
Introduction	xiii
Chapter One. The King, the Army, and Macedonian Imperialism	1
I. The problems in the way of a strong Macedonia	2
II. The resources of Macedonia	5
III. Philip and the Macedonian army	11
IV. The army and the Hellenistic empires	20
Chapter Two. Imperial Propaganda and Justification	24
I. Power and superiority	24
II. Alexander and the progonoi	33
III. A case study: the Antigonid paintings from Boscoreale	45
Chapter Three. Macedonian Kings and Greek Cities: Mechanisms of Interaction	56
I. Justifications for Hellenistic monarchy	56
II. The Greek cities' response to monarchy	70
Chapter Four. Macedonian Dynasts in Asia Minor	81
I. Dynasts in Asia Minor and Macedonia before Alexander	82
II. The Diadochoi	87
III. The Macedonian dynasts of Asia Minor	90
IV. The non-Macedonian dynasts of Asia Minor	104
V. Conclusions	107
Appendix: Genealogies of some Anatolian dynasteiai	110

Chapter Five. Kings and Estate-Holders in Asia:
A Case Study	111
I. The granting of title to the estate	113
II. The composition of the estate	117
III. The tribute owing from the estate and its value as security	123
IV. The king's right of resumption	132
Appendix. The Mnesimachos inscription: text, translation and analysis	137
Chapter Six. Macedonian Settlers and Colonists in Asia	146
I. What sort of Macedonian settlers and how many	148
II. When and why Macedonians settled in the empire	157
III. What Macedonian settlers and colonists received	160
IV. How settlers and colonists lived and saw themselves	169
V. The function of the Macedonian settlers and colonists	172
Appendix: Macedonian colonies in Asia	179
Chapter Seven. The Effects on Macedonia of the Macedonian Empire	183
I. Warfare and Macedonian manpower	184
II. Emigration and Macedonian manpower	206
III. The economic effects of the empire	212
IV. The effects of imperialism on Macedonia	216
Conclusion	218
Bibliography	221
Index	231