

Debating form and Substance in Africa's new Governance Models

Editors

J. Oloka-Onyango
Nansozi K. Muwanga

FOUNTAIN PUBLISHERS
Kampala

Contents

Contributors	vi
Foreword	vii
SECTION ONE: THE CONCEPT AND PRACTICE OF DEMOCRACY
1 Assessing Africa's New Governance Models	1
Adebayo Olukoshi
SECTION TWO: THE LANGUAGE AND RHETORIC OF POLITICS
2 Legal Perspectives on the Search for Legitimacy in African Governance Systems	28
Mulela M. Munalula
Case Study 1 - Zambia: Can legitimacy be acquired whilst in office?	35
Case study 2 - South Africa: What expectations must be met in order to claim legitimacy in office?	42
Case Study 3 - Zimbabwe: Can legitimacy be diminished and lost even as a government asserts its legitimacy and enacts or implements laws to fulfil its mandate?	47
3 Reflections on the Language and Logic of Good Governance and its Application in the African Context	54
Cheryl Hendricks
Rhetoric or metaphor?	56
Translating participation, accountability and transparency	68

SECTION THREE: ELECTORAL PROCESS IN AFRICA

4 In Search of Legitimate Governance and Electoral Substance: From Theory to Practice*	74
Onalenna D. Selolwane
The Post-colony and the challenges of alien instruments of governance	76
Domesticating the national constitution: The Botswana example	79
Confronting the legacy of single-party dominance	86
Electoral processes and representation	91
The future of democratic practice	94
5 Constitutional Engineering and Elections as Sources of Legitimacy in Post-Cold War Africa	101
Kassahun Berhanu
Constitutional reforms and elections as sources of legitimacy	102
Electoral exercises and democratic pretensions	104
Governance as a benchmark of legitimacy	107
Governance and policy making	110
The implications of globalization for Africa's new governance models	113
6 Electoral Processes in Uganda: From Individual Merit to Multi-party Democracy	122
Sallie K. Simba
Voting behavior: Theoretical explanations	122
National Assembly elections of April 25, 1962	125
Return to multi-party politics and the nostalgia for the individual merit system	139
The 2005 referendum	139
7 Bananas and Oranges! Ethnicity and Failed Constitutional Reform in Kenya	149
Karuti Kanyinga
Ethnicity, exclusion and constitutional reform in Africa	150

Ethnicity and constitutional developments, 1963-1990	- 156
New demand for reforms, 1991-2002	159
Conflicts over process - Civil society versus political society	162
Politics of national unity and the 2002 Elections	169
Of oranges and bananas: The November 2005 referendum	184

SECTION FOUR: THE SOURCE OF LEGITIMACY

8 Sustainable Electoral Process and Governance in Africa: Some Lessons from Ghana	192
Felix K.G. Anebo
Conceptualizing the electoral process	194
Electoral processes and democracy	199
9 Democratic Governance in Africa: Towards Common Values and Standards	210
Eddy Maloka
Defining the concepts	210
Towards common values and standards	219

SECTION FIVE: UNRAVELING THE MAZE: REFLECTIONS ON RHETORIC AND REALITY

10 Not Yet Democracy, Not Yet Peace! Assessing Rhetoric and Reality in Contemporary Africa	230
Joe Oloka-onyango
Introduction: Revisiting some conceptual issues	230
Stepping back in order to move forward	234
The human rights and democracy debate in contemporary Africa	237
Oversight vs. self-regulation	240
Self-determination vs. minority rights	247