

URS PETER RUF
Ending Slavery.
Hierarchy, Dependency and Gender in Central Mauritania

[transcript]

CONTENTS

Preface	9
Acknowledgements	15
Note on Transliteration	17
Introduction	19
Chapter 1
Approaching Slavery in Bīḏān Society	27
Theorising Slavery	27
Slavery and Social Hierarchy in Bīḏān Society	36
A Methodology of Rural Slave System Studies	44
Chapter 2
Changing Configurations of Hierarchy and Dependency	49
Methodological Considerations	50
Contrasting Life Stories	56
Exploring the Change	78
Chapter 3
Slave Women	93
Tent Slaves and Female Slave Affection	93
Slave-Master Milk Kinship	94
Concubinage	99
Status and Split Origin	105
Chapter 4
The Demography of Western Saharan Slavery	113
Africa and the Slave Trades	113
Numbering Sūdān	126
Sex, Gender and Servile Demography	136

Chapter 5
Gender and Status in the Topography of Work	139
Gendered Labour	139
Domains of Work	150
Gender, Status and the Locus of Work	170
Chapter 6
The Historical Dynamics of Bīḏān Economy	177
Gum and Guinée	177
The Colonial Challenge to Pastoral Economy	184
Wage Labour and Migration	190
Chapter 7
Small Dams, Large Dams:
Bīḏān Land Tenure and Social Stratification	199
Land Tenure: the Legal Framework	200
Case Studies	208
Land Tenure, Gender and Relations of Domination	247
Chapter 8
The Difference in Identity	253
The Politics of Ḥarāḏīn Identity	253
Marking Difference, Marking Identity	256
Being a Part or Being Apart?	273
Chapter 9
Where Do They Go To?	285
Notes	295
Transliteration of Arabic Characters	395
Bibliography	397
Index	423