

London School of Economics
Monographs on Social Anthropology
No 62

Fernando Santos-Granero

*The Power of Love:
The Moral Use of Knowledge amongst the Amuesha of Central Peru*

THE ATHLONE PRESS
London & Atlantic Highlands, NJ

Contents

List of Maps, Diagrams, Charts and Figures	vi
Acknowledgements	viii
Introduction	1
1 New winds for an old people: ethnohistorical account of the post-Columbian Amuesha	13
2 The obsession with order and the permanent threat of chaos	36
3 The quest for knowledge and power, and the transcendence of the human condition	96
4 The praise of love: the paradigm of fatherhood and authority	163
5 The moral use of knowledge and power	229
6 Conclusions	295
Appendices
Appendix I Amuesha native communities and local settlements, 1980	307
Appendix II Amuesha descent groups of the mythical pre-social era	309
Appendix III Amuesha kin and affine reference terms for male and female ego	315
Appendix IV List of Amuesha Priests and Ceremonial Centres of the Past	317
Glossary	319
Bibliography	326
Index	332