Abbreviations 17

Chapter 1. Introduction 19

1.1 Speech vs. writing vs. conversational writing 19

1.2 Aim and scope of the study 23

1.3 Synchronicity of communication 30

1.4 Notes on terminology 34

1.5 Outline of the study 37

Chapter 2. Background 39

2.1 Introductory remarks 39

2.2 Survey of the literature on speech and writing 39

2.3 Biber's (1988) dimensions of textual variation 50

2.4 Halliday's and others' essentially qualitative approaches 60

2.5 Survey of the literature on CMC 66

2.6 Description of the media for conversational writing 77

2.7 Chapter summary 81

Chapter 3. Material and method 83

3.1 Introductory remarks 83

3.2 Creating and annotating a corpus of Internet relay chat 84

3.3 Creating and annotating a corpus of split-window ICQ chat 93
3.4 The Santa Barbara Corpus subset 96
3.5 Standardization and dimension score computation 100
3.6 Average figures for writing and speech, respectively 103
3.7 Chapter summary 106

Chapter 4. Salient features in conversational writing 109
4.1 Introductory remarks 109
4.2 Distribution of modal auxiliary verbs and personal pronouns 111
4.3 Word length, type/token ratio and lexical density 130
4.4 The most salient features 149
4.5 Paralinguistic features and extra-linguistic content 172
4.6 Inserts and emotives 189
4.7 Chapter summary 204

Chapter 5. Conversational writing positioned on Biber's (1988) dimensions 205
5.1 Introductory remarks 205
5.2 Dimension plots 211
5.2.1 Dimension 1: Informational versus Involved Production 212
5.2.2 Dimension 2: Narrative versus Non-Narrative Concerns 222
5.2.3 Dimension 3: Explicit/Elaborated versus Situation-Dependent Reference 228
5.2.4 Dimension 4: Overt Expression of Persuasion/Argumentation 234
5.2.5 Dimension 5: Abstract/Impersonal versus Non-Abstract/ Non-Impersonal Information 241
5.2.6 Dimension 6: On-Line Informational Elaboration 247
5.3 Chapter summary 254

Chapter 6. Discussion 255
6.1 Introductory remarks 255
6.2 Hypotheses revisited quantitatively 256
6.3 From genres to text types 263
6.4 Research questions revisited 275
6.5 Chapter summary 289

Chapter 7. Conclusion 291
7.1 Summary of the study 291
7.2 Suggestions for further research 295

Appendices 297
Appendix I. Texts used in Biber's (1988) study 297
Appendix II. Descriptive statistics for genres studied 299
Appendix III. Raw frequencies of linguistic features 313
Appendix IV. Examples of excluded material 319
Appendix V. Features with a |standard score| >2.0 320
Appendix VI. Statistical tests of salient features 322
Appendix VII. Word lists for the corpora studied 323
Appendix VIII. Dimension score statistics for Biber's (1988) genres 325
Appendix IX. Computation of cluster affiliations 330
Appendix X. Dimension scores for individual texts 332
