

Public Expenditure Tracking of Secondary Education Bursary Fund in Nairobi Province, Kenya

Lineth N. Oyugi, Andrew R. Riechi and Evelyn Anupi

Discussion Paper No. 107/2008

The Authors

¹Lineth N. Oyugi is an Assistant Research Fellow, Macroeconomics Programme, IPAR.

²Dr. Andrew R. Riechi is a Research Fellow and Coordinator Social Sector Programme, IPAR.

³Evelyn Anupi is a Senior Economist, Ministry of Education, Kenya.

Acknowledgements

We are grateful to the Brookings Institution, USA for financing this survey and the international conferences in which the findings of the survey were discussed. To Charles Grifins, Raymond Struyk, Courtney Tolmie, Chinyere Bun, Alice Krupit and the international reviewers, we are indebted for your constructive criticism and comments. All these enhanced the quality of this paper. Nonetheless, we the authors, take sole responsibility for any errors in the paper.

Table of Contents

Abbreviations and Acronyms.....	ii
Abstract	1
1.0 Introduction	1
1.1. Education in Kenya	1
1.2. Status of Secondary Education	2
1.3. Secondary Education Bursary Fund	5
2.0. Survey Objectives and Hypotheses	9
2.1 Survey Objectives	9
2.2 Survey Hypotheses	9
2.3 Justification for Survey	10
3.0 Methodology	10
3.1 Sampling Plan	10
3.2 Data and Data Sources	11
3.3 Data Collection	11
3.4 Definition of Variables	12
4.0 Findings	12
4.1 Demand for Secondary Education Bursary Fund in Nairobi Province	12
4.2 Efficiency in Administration of the SEBF	19
4.3 Leakages of the Bursary Programme	23
4.4 Funds allocated to students no longer in school.....	27
5.0 Conclusions and Recommendations.....	29
5.1 Conclusions	29
5.2 Recommendations	30
References	32
Appendices	34
Appendix 1: Form A	34
Appendix 2: Form D	40