

Central and Eastern Europe, 1944–1993

Detour from the periphery to the periphery

Ivan T. Berend

University of California, Los Angeles

2

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Preface	page ix
Acknowledgments	xviii
I Out from Europe: the introduction of state socialism, the Stalinist decades, and revolts against them	1
1 Communist seizure of power, 1944–8	3
2 The closed society in Stalinist state socialism after 1948	39
3 Reforms, revolutions, and the loosening bloc, the 1950s and 1960s	94
II Temporary success and terminal failure: the post-Stalinist decades – modernization, erosion, and collapse	153
4 Post-Stalinist state socialism and its legitimization	155
5 Economic and social performance of state socialism, 1950–89	182
6 Crisis and erosion of state socialism, 1973–88	222
7 The collapse: a revolutionary symphony in four movements, 1989	254
III Back to Europe? Post-1989 transformation and pathways to the future	301
8 Building a parliamentary market system	303
9 Economic decline – political challenge – rising nationalism	341
References	382
Names index	401
Subject index	407
	vii