

MILITARY INTERVENTION IN THE THIRD WORLD

Threats, Constraints, and Options

Edited by John H. Maurer
and Richard H. Porth

PRAEGER

PRAEGER SPECIAL STUDIES • PRAEGER SCIENTIFIC

New York • Philadelphia • Eastbourne, UK
Toronto • Hong Kong • Tokyo • Sydney

Contents

Foreword by Nils H. Wessell	vii
Preface by John H. Maurer and Richard H. Porth	ix
Introduction: The Strategic Background to Military Interventions John H. Maurer	1
I THE NATURE OF THE THREAT
1 Soviet Intervention in the Third World Alvin Z. Rubinstein	19
2 Proxies, Small Wars, and Soviet Foreign Policy Gordon H. McCormick	37
3 Locally Generated Contingencies in the Third World Dov. S. Zakheim	67
II CONSTRAINTS ON U.S. POLICY
4 Domestic Political Constraints on U.S. Military Interventions W. Scott Thompson and Andrew B. Walworth	87
5 Power Projection and U.S. Alliance Cohesion Terry L. Deibel	101
6 Intervention: Technical and Logistical Constraints Norman Friedman	125
III RESPONSE OPTIONS
7 Responding to Soviet Intervention in the Third World: A New Approach to U.S. Defense Planning Kevin N. Lewis	143
8 Responding to Soviet Proxy Interventions in the Third World William J. Taylor, Jr.	191

9	Responding to Locally Generated Contingencies: A Gray Area in American Strategy	207
	Michael E. Vlahos

	Index	231
	About the Editors and Contributors	239