

CHINA

A NEW HISTORY

John King Fairbank

THE BELKNAP PRESS OF
HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge, Massachusetts

London, England

1992

Contents

Preface	xv
Introduction: Approaches to Understanding China's History	i
The Variety of Historical Perspectives	1
Geography: The Contrast of North and South	4
Humankind in Nature	14
The Village: Family and Lineage	17
Inner Asia and China: The Steppe and the Sown	23

PART ONE

Rise and Decline of the Imperial Autocracy	27
--	----

1. Origins: The Discoveries of Archaeology	29
Paleolithic China	29
Neolithic China	31
Excavation of Shang and Xia	33
The Rise of Central Authority	37
Western Zhou	39
Implications of the New Archaeological Record	40

2. The First Unification: Imperial Confucianism	46
The Utility of Dynasties	46
Princes and Philosophers	49
The Confucian Code	51
Daoism	53
Unification by Qin	54
Consolidation and Expansion under the Han	57
Imperial Confucianism	62
Correlative Cosmology	64
Emperor and Scholars	66
3. Reunification in the Buddhist Age	72
Disunion	72
The Buddhist Teaching	73
Sui–Tang Reunification	76
Buddhism and the State	79
Decline of the Tang Dynasty	81
Social Change: The Tang–Song Transition	83
4. China's Greatest Age: Northern and Southern Song	88
Efflorescence of Material Growth	88
Education and the Examination System	93
The Creation of Neo-Confucianism	96
Formation of Gentry Society	101
5. The Paradox of Song China and Inner Asia	108
The Symbiosis of Wen and Wu	108
The Rise of Non-Chinese Rule over China	112
China in the Mongol Empire	119
Interpreting the Song Era	126
6. Government in the Ming Dynasty	128
Legacies of the Hongwu Emperor	128
Fiscal Problems	132
China Turns Inward	137
Factional Politics	140
7. The Qing Success Story	143
The Manchu Conquest	143
Institutional Adaptation	146

The Jesuit Interlude	151
Growth of Qing Control in Inner Asia	152
The Attempted Integration of Polity and Culture	154

/

PART TWO

Late Imperial China, 1600-1911 163

8. The Paradox of Growth without Development	167
The Rise in Population	167
Diminishing Returns of Farm Labor	170
The Subjection of Women	173
Domestic Trade and Commercial Organization	176
Merchant-Official Symbiosis	179
Limitations of the Law	183
9. Frontier Unrest and the Opening of China	187
The Weakness of State Leadership	187
The White Lotus Rebellion, 1796-1804	189
X Maritime China: Origins of the Overseas Chinese	191
X European Trading Companies and the Canton Trade	195
Rebellion on the Turkestan Frontier, 1826-1835	197
Opium and the Struggle for a New Order at Guangzhou, 1834-1842	198
Inauguration of the Treaty Century after 1842	201
10. Rebellion and Restoration	206
The Great Taiping Rebellion, 1851-1864	206
Civil War	209
The Qing Restoration of the 1860s	212
Suppression of Other Rebellions	214
11. Early Modernization and the Decline of Qing Power	217
Self-Strengthening and Its Failure	217
The Christian-Confucian Struggle	221
The Reform Movement	224
The Boxer Rising, 1898-1901	230
Demoralization	232

12. The Republican Revolution, 1901-1916	235
A New Domestic Balance of Power	235
Suppressing Rebellion by Militarization	236
Elite Activism in the Public Sphere	238
The Japanese Influence	240
The Qing Reform Effort	241
Constitutionalism and Self-Government	244
Insoluble Systemic Problems	247
The Revolution of 1911 and Yuan Shikai's Dictatorship	250

PART THREE

The Republic of China, 1912-1949

13. The Quest for a Chinese Civil Society	257
The Limits of Chinese Liberalism	257
The Limits of Christian Reformism	260
The Tardy Rise of a Political Press	262
Academic Development	263
The New Culture Movement	266
The May Fourth Movement	267
Rise of the Chinese Bourgeoisie	269
Origins of the Chinese Communist Party	275
14. The Nationalist Revolution and the Nanjing Government	279
Sun Yatsen and the United Front	279
The Accession to Power of Jiang Jieshi (Chiang Kaishek)	283
The Nature of the Nanjing Government	286
Systemic Weaknesses	289
15. The Second Coming of the Chinese Communist Party	294
Problems of Life on the Land	294
Rural Reconstruction	299
The Rise of Mao Zedong	301
The Long March, 1934-1935	305
The Role of Zhou Enlai	307
The Second United Front	310

16. China's War of Resistance, 1937-1945	312
Nationalist Difficulties	312
Mao's Sinification of Marxism	316
Mao Zedong Thought	321
The Rectification Campaign of 1942-1944	323
American Support of Coalition Government	326
17. The Civil War and the Nationalists on Taiwan	331
Why the Nationalists Failed	331
Nationalist Attack and Communist Counterattack	334
Taiwan as a Japanese Colony	337
Taiwan as the Republic of China	339
PART FOUR
The People's Republic of China, 1949-1991	343
<hr/>
18. Establishing Control of State and Countryside	345
Creating the New State, 1949-1953	345
Collectivizing Agriculture	352
Collective Agriculture in Practice	354
Beginning Industrialization	357
Education and the Intellectuals	359
The Anti-Rightist Campaign, 1957-1958	365
19. The Great Leap Forward, 1958-1960	368
Background Factors	368
The Disaster of 1959-1960	372
Revival: Seizing Control of Industrial Labor	374
Party Rectification and Education	376
The Sino-Soviet Split	378
The Great Leap Forward as a Social Movement	380
20. The Cultural Revolution, 1966-1976	383
Underpinnings	383
Mao's Aims and Resources	385
Role of the People's Liberation Army	387
How the Cultural Revolution Unfolded	389

The Red Guards	392
The Seizure of Power	393
Foreign Affairs	395
Decentralization and the Third Front	397
The Succession Struggle	400
The Cultural Revolution in Retrospect	401
Aftermath	404

21. Deng Xiaoping's Reforms, 1978–1988	406
Rehabilitation and Party Rebuilding	406
Agricultural Development	409
Industrial Development	413
Foreign Trade and Investment	416
Science and Technology	417
The Party and the Public	419
The Democracy Movement	421
The Tiananmen Massacre, June 4, 1989	423

Epilogue	427
----------	-----

Note on Romanization and Citation	434
-----------------------------------	-----

Suggested Reading	435
-------------------	-----

Publisher's Note	491
------------------	-----

Illustration Credits	493
----------------------	-----

Author Index	497
--------------	-----

General Index	505
---------------	-----

Illustrations follow pages 76, 172, and 300