

UNIWERSYTET WARSZAWSKI
KATEDRA JĘZYKOZNAWSTWA OGÓLNEGO I BAŁTYSTYKI

Axel Holvoet

MOOD
AND MODALITY
IN BALTIC

KRAKÓW 2007

WYDAWNICTWO UNIWERSYTETU JAGIELLOŃSKIEGO

Table of Contents

Preface	9
Notes on tagging principles	11
List of abbreviations	13
Chapter 1. Theoretical prerequisites	15
1.1. Introductory remarks	15
1.2. Types of modality	16
1.3. Modality and mood	22
1.4. Speech acts, sentence types and modality	27
1.5. Sentential complementation	30
1.6. Concluding remarks	32
Chapter 2. The inventory	33
2.1. Introduction	33
2.2. The moods of the Lithuanian verb	33
2.3. The moods of the Latvian verb	40
2.4. Modal verbs and verb-like modal expressions	43
2.5. Modal constructions with participles	48
2.6. Verbal nouns	52
2.7. 'Be' with the infinitive	54
2.8. Final remarks	55
Chapter 3. The irrealis	57
3.1. The notion of irrealis	57
3.2. The Baltic irrealis	59
3.3. Defining the meaning of 'irrealis': Irrealis and factivity	61
3.4. Irrealis and deontic modality	64
3.5. Special optative and hortative uses of the irrealis	71
3.6. The irrealis in questions	74
3.7. The history of the Baltic irrealis	76
Chapter 4. Evidentials	81
4.1. The inventory	81
4.2. The origin of the Baltic evidential	92
4.3. The syntactic structure of the Baltic evidential	96
4.4. The evolution of evidential marking in Baltic	104
4.5. The Baltic evidential among other verbal categories	104

Chapter 5. Modality, evidentiality and interpretive use.....	107
5.1. Introductory remarks	107
5.2. Evidentials, quotatives and interpretive use	107
5.3. The interpretive use of deontic modals	111
5.4. A Russian parallel: The echoic imperative.....	118
5.5. Echoic imperatives in Lithuanian.....	120
5.6. From interpretive deontic to interpretive epistemic.....	121
5.7. Interpretive use and imputed purpose.....	124
Chapter 6. The modal verbs in grammar	129
6.1. Introductory remarks	129
6.2. Modal verbs and modal adverbs.....	130
6.3. Modals and tense marking.....	132
6.4. Irrealis marking and factivity	135
6.5. Passivisation of modals	140
6.6. Negation	142
6.7. Personal and impersonal modals	146
6.8. Grammaticalisation	150
6.9. Final remarks.....	152
Chapter 7. Modal verbs: Lexical aspects.....	153
7.1. Introduction.....	153
7.2. Possibility in Lithuanian.....	153
7.3. Possibility in Latvian.....	157
7.4. Necessity in Lithuanian.....	159
7.5. Necessity in Latvian	163
7.6. The modal verbs and factuality	166
7.7. Perfective modals and implicatives	169
7.8. Concluding remarks	170
Chapter 8. The Latvian debitive	173
8.1. The debitive and mood.....	173
8.2. The synchronic interpretation of the debitive.....	181
8.3. The history of the debitive.....	185
Chapter 9. 'Be' and the infinitive	195
9.1. The construction 'be' + infinitive and its reflexes.....	195
9.2. Syntactic interpretation of the 'dative + infinitive'	202
9.3. Separate developments in Latvian.....	209
Chapter 10. Mood and subordination	217
10.1. Introductory remarks	217
10.2. Lithuanian complementation.....	217
10.3. Latvian complementation.....	219
10.4. Lithuanian and Latvian.....	231
10.5. Complementation and adverbials	233
10.6. Final remarks.....	236
Bibliography.....	239