

Sub-Saharan Africa: A Sub-Continent in Transition

Edited by

RUKHSANA A. SIDDIQUI

Associate Professor, International Relations

Quaid-i-Azam University

Islamabad, Pakistan

Avebury

Aldershot · Brookfield USA · Hong Kong · Singapore · Sydney

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Contributors	ix
Introduction	1
I Post-colonial Africa: the politics of transition	9
1 The dynamics of African political societies in transition Colin Legum	11
2 Beyond the civil military dichotomy in Africa: the case of Tanzania Abillah H. Omari	19
3 The political crises in Uganda Michael Okema	49
II "Developmental politics" or the political economy of development?	73
4 Structural adjustment programs and liberalization policies in Tanzania Ibrahim A. Shao	75
5 Zimbabwe: security for development Larry Swatuk & Timothy Shaw	100

6	International labor migration in Lesotho: recent dimensions and context	Khabele T. Matlosa	125
7	Education and development in Swaziland: aims, strategies and challenges	Apollo Rwomire	149
III	Conflict creation or conflict resolution in southern Africa		167
8	Military and political destabilization in southern Africa: an historical perspective	Solomon Nkiwane	169
9	Conflict creation in Angola and UNITA destabilization	Rukhsana A. Siddiqui	190
10	The Reagan administration and the decolonization of Namibia	Laurent C.W. Kaela	209
11	The end of the cold war and conflict resolution in southern Africa	Thomas Ohlson	233
IV	Regional cooperation and long term security		259
12	East African attempts at regional cooperation	Anders Närman	261
13	The future of SADCC	Pemplanı Mfunne	287
14	Canada's role in the long term security of SADC(C) states	David R. Black	304
	Bibliography		339