

FROM BERLIN TO BERKELEY

German-Jewish Identities

REINHARD BENDIX

Transaction Books
New Brunswick (U.S.A.) and Oxford (U.K.)

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction	1
PART I A Father's Heritage: Ludwig Bendix (1877-1954)
1. Early Struggles (1877-1902)	15
Origin – Break with Judaism – Three Friends – Student Days
2. The German Legal Profession	37
Historical Background – Public Service, Private Gain – National and Individual Interests
3. A Critic of Official Impartiality (1914-1918)	45
Authoritarianism – A Professional Commitment – Rational Awareness of Irrational Forces – Judges and Lawyers – Remedies – Critiques of the Critic – Logical Analysis – Political Analysis
4. The Family Setting (1910-1916)	59
My Parents – An Experience in Eastern Europe
5. A Partisan of Nonpartisanship (1918-1919)	73
Works-Council Debates – Electoral Reform – A Letter to the Jewish Community
6. Embattled Judges (1918-1923)	87
Politics of Early Weimar – The German Judiciary – A Legislative Program – The Main Task of the Judiciary – New Rights
7. Critic and Mediator (1924-1932)	99
Court Decision Critic – Judge in a Labor Court – Popular Sovereignty in the Law
8. A Career Destroyed (1932-1935)	113
Crisis of Weimar – The Ax Falls – A Deal with the Gestapo? – A Trial

PART II Crises of Affiliation: Reinhard and Ludwig Bendix
9. Early Memories	133
10. The Crisis Years (1933-1934)	145
Dismissed from School – Growing up at Seventeen – To Leave or Not Leave – Getting a Signature – Self-assertion – Welwyn Garden City – Return
11. Concentration Camp Again (1935-1937)	161
12. While Father Was Imprisoned	175
Belief in Law – Illegal Discussions – Zionism – Intellectual Interests
13. Emigration, Immigration (1937-1938)	187
America or Palestine – Toward Judaism and Away from It – In Transit – Paris – Lost Country, Lost Language – America
14. Beginning a Career in America (1938-1946)	211
Introduction – My Teachers – Study and Research – Teaching at Chicago
15. First Years at the University of California (1947-1951)	229
A New Department – Social Science and the Distrust of Reason – An Academic Crisis
16. My Parents' Ten Years in Palestine (1937-1947)	241
Emigration to Palestine – A New Assimilation? – Mounting Disappointment and New Hope – Zionist Friends – Emigration to the United States
17. My Parents' Immigration (1947-1952)	259
Reunion and Second Thoughts – My Father's Anxieties – Getting Settled? – My Father at Work – Unrequited Affection – The In-Law Problem – A Second Citizenship
18. What to Study and Why: A Final Dialogue	277
A Legal and a Scholarly Approach – Nonpartisanship Reconsidered – Studying the Use of Ideas
Epilogue	287
A German Jewish Family – My Father's Assimilation – My American Family – Last Reflections	