

The Defence of White Power

South African Foreign Policy under Pressure

Robert Scott Jaster

Foreword by Helen Kitchen

M in association with the
INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR STRATEGIC STUDIES
MACMILLAN (IISS)

Contents

Foreword by Helen Kitchen	ix
Acknowledgements	xii
Introduction: South African Foreign Policy in Context	xiii
Map of Southern Africa	xvii

PART I PERSPECTIVES

1 The Imprint of Afrikaner Experience	3
2 Perceptions of South Africa's International Role	8
A Bridge to Black Africa	9
A Military Ally	12

PART II THE MAKING OF FOREIGN POLICY

3 Decision-Making and the Foreign Policy Process	19
The Policy Environment	19
Parliament and the NP	21
Contrasting Leaders: Vorster and Botha	24
Competing Bureaucracies	31
The State Security Council (SSC)	35
Critique of the Process	39
4 Foreign Policy in Defence of Apartheid	42
Apartheid under Attack	42
Apartheid and National Security	44

PART III SHIFTING FOREIGN POLICY STRATEGIES

5 Deteriorating Security and Policy Reappraisal (1974–8)	51
Détente and Vorster's Rhodesian Initiative	51
Seeking a Settlement in Namibia	59
Intervention in Angola, 1975–6	68
6 Growing Militancy and Isolation under P. W. Botha since 1978	79
The Ascendancy of a Hawk	79
The 'Constellation' Initiative and the Fall of Rhodesia	82
Genesis of the New Militancy	88

7	Namibia Policy and the War in Angola	92
	The Shifting War Strategy	92
	Results of the War Strategy	101
	Botha's UN Diplomacy	104
	The Stalled Game-Plan inside Namibia	108
	The Reagan Factor	111
	Seeking Alternative Solutions	115
8	Regional Destabilization	119
	SADF Raids in Neighbouring States	119
	Renamo and other Proxy Forces	124
	Railway Diplomacy	132
	SADF Misadventures	135
	Assessing Destabilization	138
 PART IV DETERIORATING RELATIONS WITH THE WEST
9	Foreign Policy Responses to the West	143
	Fading Hopes for Closer Ties	143
	Diplomacy under Pressure	146
	Seeking Allies Elsewhere	154
10	Pretoria's Nuclear Diplomacy	159
	Perspective	159
	The Kalahari Contretemps	161
	Growing Nuclear Capability	164
	The Question of Nuclear Targets	168
	Assessing South Africa's Nuclear Diplomacy	171
	Epilogue	173
	A Regime under Siege	173
	Foreign Policy Imperatives and Constraints	174
	The Changing Foreign Policy Environment	177
	Alternative Scenarios	179
	Notes and References	183
	Index	198