

THE POST- KEYNESIAN APPROACH TO ECONOMICS

An Alternative Analysis of Economic Theory and Policy

PHILIP ARESTIS

University of East London

Edward Elgar

Contents

---

Preface	ix
1 The Grand Neo-classical Synthesis
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 The micro and macro aspects of the GNS	1
1.3 Economic policy analysis within the GNS	9
1.4 Completing the GNS: the Phillips curve relationship	13
1.5 The birth of rational expectations	21
1.6 Concluding remarks	23
2. Refinements of the GNS
2.1 Introduction	25
2.2 New classical economics	27
2.3 New neo-classical synthesis	30
2.4 Open economy aspects	37
2.5 The GNS growth model	43
2.6 Business cycles	49
2.7 Concluding remarks	57
3. A Critique of GNS Economics
3.1 Introduction	60
3.2 The atomistic, harmony and asocial nature of GNS	61
3.3 Income distribution and the meaning of capital	65
3.4 Rationality, optimization and equilibrium analysis	69
3.5 Economic policy, rational expectations and market clearing	72
3.6 Methodological problems	77
3.7 Concluding remarks	85

4.	Post-Keynesian Economics
4.1	Introduction	86
4.2	Prolegomena	88
4.3	Methodological aspects and key features of post-Keynesian economics	94
4.4	The constituent theoretical elements of post-Keynesian economics	101
4.5	The post-Keynesian model	110
4.6	Concluding remarks	115
5.	Theories of Production, Investment and Distribution
5.1	Introduction	116
5.2	Production theory	117
5.3	Theories of household and investment demand	122
5.4	Distribution theory	133
5.5	Concluding remarks	137
6.	Theories of Prices and Pricing
6.1	Introduction	139
6.2	Kalecki's pricing theory	140
6.3	Extensions of Kalecki's pricing theory	142
6.4	Eichner's pricing theory	143
6.5	Wood's pricing theory	154
6.6	Inflation theory	159
6.7	Concluding remarks	161
7.	The Theory of Money Wage Determination
7.1	Introduction	163
7.2	'Target real wages' and 'wage-relativities' in wage determination	164
7.3	Hysteresis effects	169
7.4	Concluding remarks	177
8.	The Theory of Money, Credit and Finance
8.1	Introduction	179
8.2	The endogeneity characteristic of money	180
8.3	Money: residue not cause	182
8.4	A model of money, credit and finance	186
8.5	The post-Keynesian consensus on money, credit and finance	201
8.6	Concluding remarks	203

9. Growth Dynamics and Business Cycles Theories
9.1 Introduction	205
9.2 Growth dynamics	205
9.3 Business cycles	223
9.4 Concluding remarks	239
10. Economic Policy Implications
10.1 Introduction	240
10.2 Obstacles to economic policy	242
10.3 The closed economy case	254
10.4 The open economy case	262
10.5 Potential constraints	268
10.6 Concluding remarks	270
Bibliography	273
Index	305