

RELIGIOUS CONFESSIONS
AND THE SCIENCES
IN THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY

EDITED BY

JÜRGEN HELM

&

ANNETTE WINKELMANN

BRILL
LEIDEN · BOSTON · KÖLN
2001

CONTENTS

Foreword to the Series	VII
Preface	VIII
Contributors and Editors	IX
Introduction	XI

SECTION ONE

CHRISTIAN CONFESSIONS AND THE SCIENCES

GÜNTER FRANK Melanchthon and the Tradition of Neoplatonism	3
PAUL RICHARD BLUM The Jesuits and the Janus-Faced History of Natural Sciences	19
MICHAEL G. MÜLLER Science and Religion in Royal Prussia around 1600	35
ANDREW CUNNINGHAM Protestant Anatomy	44
JÜRGEN HELM Religion and Medicine: Anatomical Education at Wittenberg and Ingolstadt	51

SECTION TWO

WAYS OF TRANSMISSION

MAURO ZONTA The Influence of Hasdai Crescas's Philosophy on Some Aspects of Sixteenth-Century Philosophy and Science	71
ELEAZAR GUTWIRTH Language and Medicine in the Early Modern Ottoman Empire	79

SECTION THREE

JUDAISM BETWEEN TRADITION AND SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERIES

GIANFRANCO MILETTO Tradition and Innovation: Religion, Science and Jewish Culture Between the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries	99
--	----

SAMUEL S. KOTTEK

Jews between Profane and Sacred Science in Renaissance Italy:
The Case of Abraham Portaleone 108

GIUSEPPE VELTRI

Science and Religious Hermeneutics:
The 'Philosophy' of Rabbi Loew of Prague 119

JOHANN MAIER

The Relevance of Geography for the Jewish Religion 136

Index of Names 159