a lexical approach to italian cliticization

Paola Monachesi
Contents

Preface xi
Abbreviations xiii

1 Introduction 1
1.1 What are clitics? 1
1.2 The status of clitics 3
1.3 The special position of clitics 4
1.4 A lexical approach to cliticization 6
1.5 HPSG and the analysis of cliticization 7
1.5.1 The theory 8
1.6 Contents 18

2 The status of Italian clitics 21
2.1 Italian clitics as affixes: motivations 21
2.2 Phonological status of Italian clitics 31
2.2.1 Nespor and Vogel 1986 32
2.2.2 An alternative analysis 38
2.2.3 Further remarks 50
2.3 Conclusions 52

3 The analysis of Italian clitics 55
3.1 Object clitics and simple tenses 55
3.2 The formation of the clitic cluster 59
3.2.1 Syntactic approaches to clitic distribution 60
3.2.2 Morphological approaches to clitic distribution 62
3.2.3 The Italian clitic cluster 66
3.2.4 A morphophonological analysis of Italian clitics 69
3.3 Comparison with other HPSG accounts 81
3.4 Comparison with Optimality Theory accounts 84
4 The clitic si 91
4.1 The different interpretations of clitic si 91
4.2 On the origin of si constructions 92
4.3 The analysis of clitic si 93
  4.3.1 Reflexive si 94
  4.3.2 Impersonal si 97
  4.3.3 Impersonal si and reflexive si: a comparison 105
  4.3.4 Middle si 108
  4.3.5 Ergative si 111
  4.3.6 Inherent-reflexive si 113
4.4 Previous approaches 113
4.5 Conclusion 116

5 The clitic loro 119
5.1 On the origin of loro: its development 120
5.2 Italian monosyllabic clitics vs. loro: a comparison 121
5.3 Bisyllabic units as independent words 128
5.4 The distribution of the bisyllabic clitic loro 129
  5.4.1 Problematic data 131
5.5 Conclusion 132

6 The analysis of Italian restructuring verbs 135
6.1 An analysis in terms of nonlocal features 136
  6.1.1 The bottom of the dependency 138
  6.1.2 The middle of the dependency 140
  6.1.3 The top of the dependency 141
  6.1.4 Overgeneration and additional problems 142
6.2 An argument composition analysis 144
  6.2.1 The syntactic structure of restructuring verbs 145
  6.2.2 Clitic climbing 149
  6.2.3 The bisyllabic clitic loro 158
  6.2.4 Long NP-movement 163
  6.2.5 Tough constructions 170
  6.2.6 Auxiliary selection 171
6.3 Restructuring verbs in Salentino 173
  6.3.1 Clitic climbing in Salentino 174
  6.3.2 Salentino of the northern part of the Province of Lecce 175
  6.3.3 On the status of the element ku 177
  6.3.4 Calabrese 1993 179
  6.3.5 Towards an HPSG analysis 181