

The British moralists and the internal 'ought': 1640–1740

STEPHEN DARWALL
THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

| | |
|---|---------|
| Acknowledgments | page ix |
| List of abbreviations | xii |
| 1. The British moralists: inventing internalism | 1 |
| 2. Culverwell and Locke: classical and modern natural law | 23 |
| 3. Hobbes: ethics as "consequences from the passions of men" | 53 |
| 4. Cumberland: obligation naturalized | 80 |
| 5. Cudworth: obligation and self-determining moral agency | 109 |
| 6. Locke: autonomy and obligation in the revised Essay | 149 |
| 7. Shaftesbury: authority and authorship | 176 |
| 8. Hutcheson: moral sentiment and calm desire | 207 |
| 9. Butler: conscience as self-authorizing | 244 |
| 10. Hume: norms and the obligation to be just | 284 |
| 11. Concluding reflections | 319 |
| Works cited | 333 |
| Index | 347 |