

THE SOVIET HOUSEHOLD UNDER THE OLD REGIME

Economic Conditions and Behavior in the 1970s

Gur Ofer and Aaron Vinokur

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
Cambridge
New York Port Chester
Melbourne Sydney

Contents

Acknowledgements	xii
Sources	xiii
Prologue	xiv

Chapter 1

Introduction: economics of the Soviet urban household in the 1970s	1
1. Introduction	1
2. Western theory and Soviet reality	4
3. The sample, the data, and biases	7
4. A framework of analysis in the Soviet environment	16
5. The main findings	17
6. Conclusion	40

Chapter 2

Private sources of income of the Soviet urban household	44
1. Introduction	44
2. Private sector earnings and incomes	47
3. Buying in private markets and from private people	85
4. Conclusion	100

Chapter 3

Soviet household saving	111
1. Introduction	111
2. Variables influencing Soviet household saving	112
3. The data and variables	119
5. Conclusion	133

Chapter 4
Inequality of earnings, household income and wealth in the Soviet Union in the 1970s	136
1. Introduction	136
2. Inequality of wages	140
3. The level, structure, and size distribution of household income	148
4. A note on the concentration of wealth	161
5. Conclusion	163
Chapter 5
The distributive effects of the Social Consumption Fund in the Soviet Union	168
1. Introduction	168
2. The SCF in 1973 official data and immigrant samples	171
3. Distribution of SCF allowances by work status and income groups	176
4. The effect of SCF on poverty and income distribution	184
5. Comparisons and conclusion	189
Chapter 6
The size and the structure of population in poverty in the Soviet Union	194
1. Introduction	194
2. Concepts of income and poverty and definitions of poverty lines	196
3. The extent of poverty and its characteristics	201
4. The effect of SCF, taxes and private income on poverty	214
5. The causes of poverty	219
6. Some international comparisons	222
7. Conclusion	225

Chapter 7

Earning differentials by sex in the Soviet Union: a first look	229
1. Introduction	229
2. The theory of earning differentials by sex	230
3. Equations, variables, and data	239
4. Results and interpretation	243
5. Conclusion: observations in a comparative context	262

Chapter 8

Work and family roles of Soviet women: historical trends and cross-section analysis	271
1. Introduction	271
2. A survey of historical trends	275
3. Short-term cross-sectional analysis of participation and hours worked	285
4. Life cycle participation, fertility, and education	303
5. Conclusion	310

Appendix

Demographic and economic characteristics of the sample and of the Soviet urban population	319
1. Introduction	319
2. The demographic, social, and economic composition of the sample	319
3. Income and wages	344
4. Level and structure of expenditures and consumption	353
5. Consumer durables and housing conditions	360
6. Conclusion	364

References	371
-------------------	-----

Index	389
--------------	-----