

Precarious Liberation

Workers, the State, and Contested Social Citizenship in Postapartheid South Africa

FRANCO BARCHIESI

Contents

List of Illustrations	xi
Preface	xv
Note on South Africa's Racial Terminology	xxi
Introduction	1
The Promise of Wage Labor in South Africa's Democratization	1
The Nexus of Work and Social Citizenship as a Contested Field of Signification	6
Work and Citizenship in Postcolonial and Postapartheid Modernity	12
Conclusion and Summary of Chapters	24
1. Redeeming Labor: From the Racial State to National Liberation	27
Introduction	27
"Schooling Bodies to Hard Work": Labor, Modernity, and the Policy Discourse of the Racial State	28
The Hopes and Disappointments of an Inclusive South Africanism	34
Apartheid Social Engineering and the Coercive Enforcement of Wage Labor Discipline	40
Black Workers' Struggles and the Redemption of Wage Labor, 1973–1994	46
Conclusion	59
2. The Work-Citizenship Nexus of Postapartheid South Africa	63
Resistance Is Futile: The Governance Project of the ANC in the "New South Africa"	63
The Changing Face of Precariousness	74
Building the Patriotic Worker: The Democratic Constitutionalization of Wage Labor	80
Conclusion. Disciplining Citizenship	93

3. Contesting Commodification: Social Policy Debates in the Crisis of Waged Employment	97
Introduction: Governing in the Shadow of Precariousness	97
Social Policy as a Technology of Self-Responsibility	98
“Laudable Citizens” and “Silly Fools”: Work, Families, and the Developmental Social Welfare Idea	108
“The Wage-Income Relationship Is Breaking Down”: Basic Income and Contested Decommodification	121
Conclusion: Precarious Employment as the New “People’s Contract”?	133
4. The Changing World of Work in Gauteng	139
Introduction: Dreaming of Modernity in the “Place of Gold”	139
City of Industry: The East Rand/Ekurhuleni and the Promise of Work	140
Economic Restructuring and Employment Decline: The East Rand in Transition	146
Johannesburg Municipal Workers and the Corporatization of Local Service Delivery	151
Conclusion: Invisible Workers and the Discursive Production of Postapartheid Spaces	162
5. Translation Troubles: Signifying Precarious Work on the Shop Floor	165
Introduction	165
Coping with “Something Strange”: The Disappointments of Workplace Transformation in East Rand Factories	167
New Canaan, New Egypt: Workplace, Community, and Identity among Johannesburg Municipal Workers	184
“We Feel Sort of Redundant”: Surviving the Flexible Workplace	190
Entrepreneurs of the Self: Individual Strategies and Life after Waged Employment	198
Conclusion	205
6. “Like a Branch on a Rotten Tree”: Recovering Agency after Wage Labor	209
Introduction	209
Commodification and the Reconfiguration of Workers’ Lives	211
A Future Unlike It Used to Be: Visions of the Apocalypse and Labor’s Politics of Melancholia	223

The Fog of Activism: Working-Class Agency and the Uncertain Quest for Citizenship Alternatives	232
Conclusion	244
Conclusion	249
Appendix on Methodology	257
Notes	261
Bibliography	277
Index	321