

The Land is Dying

Contingency, Creativity and Conflict in Western Kenya

Paul Wenzel Geissler and Ruth Jane Prince

Berghahn Books

New York • Oxford

Contents

List of Figures	xv
Acknowledgements	xvii
1. Introduction: ‘Are we still together here?’	1
A community at the end of the world	1
The death of today	6
Growing relations	8
Being together	9
Growth	9
Touch	11
Searching for another social practice: contingency, creativity and difference	14
Engaging boundaries	19
Hygiene	19
Knowing boundaries	22
Changing perspectives?	23
Coming together	25
Visiting	29
2. Landscapes and histories	37
Returns	37
A road in time	40
Kisumu	40
Driving out	42
Bondo district	43
The lake	44
Piny Luo – ‘Luoland’	44
A ‘tribe’	45

Luo sociality	46
The reserve	48
Return to Uhero	51
Yimbo	51
Muthurwa	53
Making Uhero village	54
(Re)Settlement	54
Belonging and ownership	57
A modern Luo village	60
'Down' into the village	61
'Up' and 'down'	61
KaOkoth	62
Alternative 'modernities': the beach and 'Jerusalem'	66
KaOgumba	68
3. Salvation and tradition: heaven and earth?	77
Dichotomies in everyday life	78
Salvation	80
Strong Christians	80
Saved life	82
Saved and others	84
Faith in purity	86
Tradition	87
The Luo rules	88
'Born-again' Traditionalism	90
Traditionalism, Christianity and the West	94
Customary everyday life	97
Searching ways	98
Tradition in everyday life	101
Everyday ritual	103
The absence of ritual	103
The omnipresence of ritual	104

PART I.	111
4. 'Opening the way': being at home in Uhero	113
Introduction	113
' Our culture says that one must make a home '	113
Embedding growth in the home	115
Tom's new home	115
Moving forward – directions	118
Openings and closures	121
Order and sequence	122
Coming together in the house	124
Making a house	126
Sharing the gendered house	127
The living house	129
Gender, generation and growth	132
Struggling against implication	135
The home in heaven	135
' The rules of the home '	136
Powers of explication	139
Practising rules	140
Cementing relations	141
Traditionalism and other kinds of ethnography	143
5. Growing children: shared persons and permeable bodies	151
Introduction	151
Sharing	153
Sharing or exchange?	155
Sharing food	155
Food, blood and kinship	157
' The child is of the mother '	158
Changed foods and relations	160
Sharing and dividing nurture	163
Shared bodies	164
Illnesses of infancy and their treatment	165
Evil eye and spirits	167
Medical pluralism?	169

Herbal medicines	171
Cleanness and dirt	173
Sharing names	176
Being named after	177
Being called	179
Sharing names and naming shares	182
Conclusion	183
PART II.	193
6. Order and decomposition: touch around sickness and death	195
Introduction	195
Otoyo's home	197
The sickness of a daughter	198
Return of a daughter	199
Kwer and chira	201
Continuity and contingency	203
Avoiding the rules	206
Treating chira	207
Caring	209
The death of a husband	211
Expected death	212
'She should remember her love!'	212
Death	214
The funeral	216
The dead body	218
Loving people	221
Conclusion	223
7. Life seen: touch, vision and speech in the making of sex in Uhero	227
Introduction	227
Earthly ethics and Christian morality	232
Riwrouk	232
Riwruok: outside intentionality	233
Chira: growth and directionality	235

Chodo and luor: continuity and change	237
Cleanness: sex and separation	240
The proliferation of 'sex'	244
AIDS and chira	244
The fight against AIDS	245
Pornography – 'bad things'	250
Conclusion	256
8. 'Our Luo culture is sick': identity and infection in the debate about widow inheritance	261
Introduction	261
Testing positive	263
Becoming a widow	264
Contentious practices	264
A tough head	265
Tero	266
Independence	268
Alone	269
Inheritance and infection	270
Past and present tero	270
Fighting tero	271
Deprivation and property	273
Inheriting HIV – fears about women's sexuality and social reproduction	275
Turning tero into a business	275
Ambiguous heritage: tero as source of identity and infection	279
' Our Luo culture is sick '	279
' The most elaborate and solemn ritual ': tero is our culture	282
Sanitising Luo culture?	283
Conclusion	285
PART III.	295
9. 'How can we drink his tea without killing a bull?' – Funerary ceremony and matters of remembrance	297
Introduction	297

Funerary ceremonies	298
Funerals in Uhero	298
Funeral commensality	300
Returning to the funeral	304
Osure's sawo	305
An Earthly feast	305
Rebekka	306
Eating the sawo	307
Traces of the past	308
'Sides'	310
BabaWinstons memorial	312
A Christian funerary celebration	312
Debates	313
The service	315
Remembrance	317
Conclusion	320
10. 'The land is dying' – traces and monuments in the village landscape	327
Introduction	327
Cutting the land	330
Ownership	330
Land, paper and power	333
Living on the land	335
Gardens and farms	335
The bush	338
Fences	340
At home	342
Traces and inscriptions	345
Getting ones land – finding one's place	349
Conclusion	354
11. Contingency, creativity and difference in western Kenya	357
Creative difference	357
Old and new dealings with hybridity	360
'Are we still together here?'	362

Postscript	364
KaOgumba and KaOkoth 2008	365
Bibliography	369
Books and articles	369
Newspaper articles and electronic media	392
Websites	395
Music	396
Index	397