

The American Search for Mideast Peace

DAN TSCHIRGI

PRAEGER

New York
Westport, Connecticut
London

CONTENTS

Preface	ix
1. MAKING OF AN OBJECTIVE	1
Background: Stages in the U.S. Approach to Arab-Zionist Tensions	2
Setting Directions: The 1967 Crisis	9
The Soviet Union	15
Arab Governments and Palestinians	20
Israel	30
Washington Explores Tactics	43
2. DIFFUSION OF AN OBJECTIVE: 1969-1976	52
Nixon Confronts the Middle East	53
Washington as Peacemaker: 1969-1970	59
Peacemaking and Non-Peacemaking: 1970-1973	67
Step-By-Step Diplomacy: 1973-1976	76
3. REVIVAL OF AN OBJECTIVE: JIMMY CARTER, 1977-1981	98
Carter's Drive to Geneva	99
The Geneva Bubble Bursts	111
Toward an Egyptian-Israeli Peace	118
The Egyptian-Israeli Peace	129
Lebanon	137

4. ABANDONMENT OF AN OBJECTIVE: RONALD REAGAN, 1981–1988	144
Searching for “Strategic Consensus”	146
“America’s Moment in the Middle East”: Lebanon	157
Washington’s Two-Track Approach	174
Collapse of an Approach	190
The Final Reagan Years	203
5. CONCLUSION: PRELUDE TO REQUIEM?	212
The U.S. Approach: 1967–1988	214
The Dynamics of U.S. Policymaking	221
Prospects	236
POSTSCRIPT: PRELUDE TO PEACE?	240
Appendix A: Joint Communique by the Governments of the United States and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, October 1, 1977	243
Appendix B: Excerpts from the Cairo Declaration on the PLO and Terrorism, November 7, 1985	245
Appendix C: Three Proposed Declarations Submitted to King Hussein of Jordan by the Palestine Liberation Organization, February, 1986	246
Appendix D: Reply by James Dyer, Department of State, Regarding the U.S. Position on Three PLO Proposals Submitted to King Hussein of Jordan in February 1986	248
Notes	253
Selected Bibliography	283
Index	287