PART I: SQUID AXON STRUCTURE, BIOCHEMISTRY, AND TRANSPORT

1. The cytoskeleton of the squid giant axon J. Adjaye and P. A. M. Eagles	3
2. The nervous system of Loligo pealei provides multiple models for analysis of organelle motility Philip L. Leopold, Jen-Wei Lin, Mutsuyuki Sugimori, Rodolfo Llinás, and Scott T. Brady	15
3. Cyclic nucleotide homeostasis and axonal G proteins in the squid Loligo forbesi T. J. A. Allen and B. Rouot	35
4. The detection and properties of electronic Na^+ - K^+ transport in the squid axon membrane U. Kishimoto, I. Inoue, I. Tsutsui, and T. Ohkawa	53

PART II: SQUID AXON ION CHANNELS

5. Resting and active K^+ channels in the squid axon membrane Isao Inoue	73
6. Studies of the kinetics of the ionic and gating currents in the axons of Loligo forbesi as a guide to modelling of the sodium channel Richard D. Keynes	85
7. An improved voltage clamp for gating current recording from the squid giant axon Ian C. Forster and Nikolaus G. Greeff	97
8. Voltage dependence of sodium channel inactivation in the squid giant axon Nikolaus G. Greeff and Ian C. Forster	107
9. Tetrodotoxin affects sodium gating current in squid giant axon Michinori Ichikawa and Gen Matsumoto	119
10. Single-channel properties and gating of Na^+ and K^+ channels in the squid giant axon Francisco Bezanilla and Ana M. Correa	131

vi Contents

11. The effects of internal Ca^{2+} and Mg^{2+} on ion channels in the squid giant axon 153
Shunichi Yamagishi, Kishio Furuya, and Fumio Kukita
12. Anaesthetics, convulsants, and the squid axon membrane 161
B. M. Hendry
13. Control of the spatial distribution of sodium channels in the squid giant axon and its cell bodies 173
W. F. Gilly, M. T. Lucero, M. Perri, and J. Rosenthal

PART III: AXON-SCHWANN CELL INTERACTION

14. Electrophysiology of squid Schwann cells 197
N. Joan Abbott, E. R. Brown, Y. Pichon, and Fumio Kukita
15. The pharmacology of receptors present on squid giant axon Schwann cells 213
Peter D. Evans, Vincenzina Reale, Rosa Maria Merzon, and Jorge Villegas
16. Periaxonal ion regulation in the squid 229
Y. Pichon, N. Joan Abbott, E. R. Brown, Isao Inoue, and Patricia A. Revest

PART IV: SQUID GIANT SYNAPSE

17. Synaptic transmission in the squid stellate ganglion 255
R. Llinás and M. Sugimori
18. Multiple calcium signalling pathways in squid giant presynaptic terminals 271
George J. Augustine, Joachim Deitmer, Michael Hans, Dieter Swandulla, and Karl Zipser
19. Chemical transmission at the squid giant synapse 283
J. B. Messenger, A. De Santis, and D. C. Ogden

PART V: NEUROMUSCULAR CONTROL

20. The structure and physiology of cephalopod muscle fibres 301
Q. Bone, E. R. Brown, and M. Usher
21. Organization of cephalopod chromatophore systems: a neuromuscular image-generator 331
Andrew Packard
22. Neurotransmitters of squid chromatophores 369
C. J. Cornwell and J. B. Messenger

PART VI: CENTRAL NERVOUS SYSTEM

23. Diffusion properties of the microenvironment of cephalopod brain 383
Charles Nicholson, Jaleel A. Miyan, Katherine T. Potter, Roddy Williamson, and N. Joan Abbott
24. Cephalopod brains: promising preparations for brain physiology 399
Bernd U. Budelmann, Theodore H. Bullock, and Roddy Williamson
25. Intracellular recordings from the chromatophore lobes of Octopus 415
J. A. Miyan and J. B. Messenger
26. Multiple matrices in the memory system of Octopus 431
J. Z. Young
27. A novel occluding junction forms the blood–brain barrier in cephalopod molluscs 445
Magnus Bundgaard, N. Joan Abbott, and Nancy J. Lane
28. Cerebrovascular organization and dynamics in cephalopods 459
N. Joan Abbott and J. A. Miyan

PART VII: SENSORY FUNCTION

29. Squid rhodopsin 479
H. R. Saibil, K. A. Langmack, C. Venien-Bryan, and J. R. Wilkinson
30. The firefly squid, Watasenia scintillans, has three visual pigments 491
Masatsugu Seidou, Kinya Narita, Masanao Michinomae, and Yuji Kito
31. The statocysts of cephalopods 503
Roddy Williamson
32. Physiology of squid olfaction 521
Mary T. Lucero and Wm. F. Gilly
