

U.S. MILITARY STRATEGY IN THE GULF

AMITAV ACHARYA

ROUTLEDGE
London and New York

Contents

List of Tables and Maps	vii
List of Acronyms	viii
Acknowledgements	xi
Preface	xiii
1 Evolution of U.S. Interests and Objectives	1
Oil, containment, and stability	1
After the Raj: an area of 'vital' interests	5
Notes	17
2 The Shah and the Nixon Doctrine	21
The Nixon Doctrine	21
Oil and the 'twin pillars'	24
The Shah as regional policeman	26
The arms pipeline	28
Notes	33
3 From Teheran to Kabul, 1979: Gulf Crises and American Reassertion	37
Iran and regional stability	37
The Afghanistan crisis and the Soviet 'threat'	44
The Carter Doctrine	49
Notes	57
4 The Central Command	63
From RDJTF to CENTCOM	65
Force structure	70
Strategic mobility programs	79
Notes	85
5 Bases, 'Facility Access', and Geopolitics	89
The access network	92
Diego Garcia	96
Somalia	102
Kenya	104
Egypt	105
Israel	107
The Gulf Cooperation Council States	110
Notes	116

6 Threats, Contingency Planning, and Response	123
'Non-Soviet' threats	123
Response to the Gulf War: 1980–84	126
Arms sales	134
'Third-party' assistance	141
The 'worst-case' threat	146
The preemptive strategy	150
The power projection balance	154
Escalation: nuclear or horizontal?	159
Notes	161
7 Conclusion	169
Bibliography	177
Index	199