

The Global Political Economy

Perspectives, Problems, and Policies

Stephen Gill

*Senior Lecturer in Politics
Wolverhampton Polytechnic*

David Law

*Senior Lecturer in Economics
Wolverhampton Polytechnic*

HARVESTER • WHEATSHEAF
NEW YORK LONDON TORONTO SYDNEY TOKYO

Contents

List of Figures	xiv
List of Tables	xii
Acknowledgements	xv
Preface	xvii

Part I Perspectives and Concepts

1 Towards an Integrated Global Political Economy	3
1. Introduction	3
2. Economics, politics, and international studies	3
3. Recent developments in the field	7
4. Summary and conclusions	14
2 On Perspectives and Their Appraisal	17
1. On perspectives	17
2. Criteria for evaluation	19
3. Perspectives and their practical implications	22
3 Realism, Mercantilism and International Dominance	25
1. Realist assumptions	25
2. Realism and foreign economic policy	27
3. Some implications of the realist perspective	30
4. Game theory, cooperation and institutions	32
5. Cooperation and international regimes	36
4 Economic Liberalism and Public Choice
1. Introduction	41
2. Liberal assumptions and units of analysis	41
3. Public goods and free-riders	44
4. The theory of hegemonic stability	46

5. Public choice and policy-making	48
6. Economic liberalism and political interests	50
5 Marxism and the World System	54
1. Introduction	54
2. Modes of production	55
3. The state and imperialism	56
4. The core-periphery divide	59
5. Transnational historical materialism	63
6. Reform or revolution?	68
6 Key Concepts: Power, Structure and Hegemony	71
1. Introduction	71
2. Power and power resources	71
3. Three dimensions of power: overt, covert and structural	73
4. Two concepts of hegemony: realist and Gramscian	76

Part II Themes

7 The Power of Capital	83
1. The concept of capital	83
2. State and capital	84
3. The power of capital	84
4. The power of capital: limits and contradictions	95
8 Military-Industrial Rivalry in the Global Political Economy	103
1. 'Catch-up logic' and realist-mercantilism	103
2. The level and determinants of military expenditures	105
3. The costs and benefits of military expenditures	109
4. The political economy of arms	113
5. The nature and significance of military-industrial complexes	115
6. The scale of the American and Soviet military-industrial complexes	116
7. The economic and political impact of military-industrial complexes	119
8. Conclusions	122

Part III The Post-War System

9 The Post-War Political Economy: Inter-state Rivalry, Transnationalisation and Globalisation	127
1. Some historical issues	128

2. The inter-war crisis and American hegemony	129
3. Patterns of growth, development and global inequality	137
4. Inter-state rivalry and the post-war military order	140
5. Post-war international economic institutions	143
6. Transnationalisation	146
7. Towards a global culture?	155
10 Money, Finance and Macroeconomics Relations	159
1. Introduction	159
2. International money	160
3. Money and credit	163
4. Balance of payments adjustment	165
5. International monetary orders	170
6. Instability and the breakdown of the Bretton Woods system	172
7. The 'brave new world' of capital mobility and offshore markets	174
8. Floating exchange rates and the dollar	176
9. Third World debts: banks and states	182
10. Political consequences and conclusions	185
11 Transnational Corporations and Global Production	191
1. Introduction	191
2. The nature and development of transnational corporations	192
3. Theories of the transnational corporation	199
4. Conflicting perspectives on transnational corporations	203
5. Transnationals, The United States government and American foreign economic policy	205
6. Transnational companies and Third World states	211
7. Bargaining with transnationals	213
8. Labour and transnationals	217
9. Conclusions	219
12 Trade and Protectionism	224
1. Introduction	224
2. The importance of international trade	224
3. Levels of analysis and key questions	227
4. Post-war trade developments	230
5. Trade and growth	233
6. Gains from trade	235
7. The macro-level: global openness and closure	240
8. The meso-level: arms production and North-South contrasts	245
9. The micro-level: the industry composition of protection	248

10. From Tokyo to Uruguay	249
11. Conclusions	252
13 Energy and the Case of International Oil	256
1. Introduction	256
2. The importance of oil	256
3. Changes in international oil	259
4. East and West, North and South	265
5. American policies	268
6. Perspectives and interpretations	271
7. Prospects	274
14 North-South Relations	280
1. Introduction	280
2. Perspectives on North-South relations	281
3. Third World economic interdependence	281
4. Third World consciousness and the international economic order	283
5. Third World demands	284
6. The New International Economic Order and the North-South dialogue	286
7. The Failure of the New International Economic Order demands	287
8. Obstacles to Third World unity	289
9. Commodity agreements and regimes	292
10. The political economy of aid	295
11. Conclusions	299
15 Communist States and East-West Relations	302
1. Some questions	303
2. The Soviet state: its origins, characteristics and development	303
3. State socialism and world capitalism	310
4. East-West trade and finance	312
5. Technology transfer and East-West relations	315
6. Soviet hegemony and Eastern Europe	320
7. The limits to the rise of soviet power	323
8. China since Mao.	328

Part IV Prospects

16 American Hegemony and International Order	335
1. Introduction	335

2. Theories of hegemonic decline and the United States	336
3. American strategic options	343
4. Hegemonic decline and material power resources	345
5. Hegemony, culture and mobilisation	347
6. United States leadership and transnational hegemony	355
7. Conclusions	357
17 Contradictions, Problems and Prospects	360
1. Introduction	360
2. Scenarios and models	360
3. Towards a transnational hegemony?	361
4. The national-mercantilist scenario	367
5. Militarisation and catastrophe	368
6. Ecological crisis	370
7. Ethical issues and the global political economy	374
8. An agenda for study	377
Index	381