

LOUIS BRENNER

Controlling Knowledge

*Religion, Power and Schooling in a
West African Muslim Society*

INDIANA UNIVERSITY PRESS
BLOOMINGTON AND INDIANAPOLIS

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	page ix
Abbreviations	xii
Introduction: Defining the Terms of Analysis	1
Chapters
1. Knowledge and Power in Pre-Colonial Muslim Societies	17
Muslim schooling and the esoteric episteme	17
Legitimacy, knowledge and power	21
2. Médersas, French and Islamic	39
The French médersas	41
The Origins of the Islamic Médersa Movement	54
-Bamako	55
-Kayes	65
-Segu	74
3. Reform and Counter-Reform: the Politics of Muslim Schooling in the 1950s	85
The social and political context of reform	88
The politics of counter-reform	102
4. Discourses of Knowledge, Power and Identity	131
Muslim doctrinal politics: a discourse about ignorance and truth	133
The French, the Africans and the Muslims: a discourse about the Other	152
Identity as a transformative system	165
5. Power Relations in the Postcolony	169
Knowledge and power in the Republic of Mali	173
Islamic resurgence and the materialization of Islam	194
6. The Dynamics of Médersa Schooling	209
The expansion of the médersa network	209
The socio-economic roots of médersa schooling: changing religious subjectivities	219
The social constituencies of the médersas	228
-Founders, directors and teachers	228

-Parents	232
-Students and youth	240
7. Islam, the State and the Ideology of Development: The Politics of Muslim Schooling in the 1980s	257
The domestication of the médersas	260
The invisibility of the médersas: discursive patterns in the public arena	273
The exclusion of the médersas: the 4ème Projet Education	280
'Governing men as things': development as a resource of extraversion	287
8. Reprise: Reassessing the Terms of Analysis	294
Bibliography	309
Index	333