

<sup>A</sup>
-
f
Pacific Islands Monograph Series, No. 12

WOVEN GODS

FEMALE CLOWNS AND
POWER IN ROTUMA

Vilsoni Hereniko

Center for Pacific Islands Studies
School of Hawaiian, Asian, and Pacific Studies
University of Hawai'i
UNIVERSITY OF HAWAI'I PRESS
Honolulu

Contents

Illustrations	x
Acknowledgments	xi
1 Prologue: Homeward Bound	1
2 Homemade Entertainment	12
3 The “Feel” of Clowning Around	27
4 Mythologizing Humor and Clowning	37
5 Woman on Top: Why Not?	65
6 Fine Mats and Spirits	103
7 Woven Gods	131
8 Epilogue: Being Rotuman	138
Appendix: Comparisons of Theory and Practice	143
Notes	167
References	181
Index	195

Illustrations

Figures

Rotuma and Fiji	2
Rotuma	3
Layout of the wedding site, wedding one	71

Photographs

Women of Mea playing cards	16
Students of Rotuma High School begin to perform a tautoga	18
The tautoga reaches a climax	18
The hân mane'âk su flirts with the anthropologist	21
Rotuma's most popular hân mane'âk su in the 1990s	22
A hân mane'âk su performs	29
The hân mane'âk su forces the highest ranking official to dance in the hot sun	35
The author with a hân mane'âk su and her husband	38
The hân mane'âk su who performed for wedding one	72
Chiefs at an important feast are served their food	78
Wedding festivities always culminate in a huge feast	92
Rotuma's most famous clown of the 1960s and 1970s	97
Students reenact the myth of 'Aeatos	112
Fine mats are brought to wedding two	117
Seated on fine mats, the bride awaits the arrival of the groom's party	121
The fau ta ritual, when the bride and groom are wrapped in fine mats	124
The fau ta ritual at wedding two	125
The vehicle used to take the bride and groom to the Christian ceremony	135
The wedding cake is cut, wedding two	136
The bridal couple with the best man and bridesmaid, wedding three	136