

MERCHANT CAPITAL AND THE
ROOTS OF STATE POWER
IN SENEGAL 1930–1985

CATHERINE BOONE

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

---

List of tables and figure	ix
Preface and acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	page 1
1 Capital and contingencies of postcolonial politics	14
The state as a resource	16
Interests of the ruling class	20
Contingencies of politics	23
Sustaining the ruling coalition	26
2 The colonial market	31
Imperial preference	32
Economie de traite of the AOF	39
World War II and the updated pacte colonial	49
Commerce and industry in the postwar AOF	58
3 Consolidation of a regime: Neocolonialism in the 1960s	78
Decolonization: The winning coalition	79
Consolidation of power	90
Material bases of the neocolonial order	104
4 Growth of Senegal's textile industry, 1960–1975	131
The interests of French capital	132
In Senegal the future lay in the domestic market	136
Oligopoly control	138
Restrictions governing textile imports	142
Expansion of the textile industry	147
5 Reappropriation of the state: The 1970s	165
The political crisis of 1968–70	166
Growth of the state apparatus: The impulsion externe	172
Shifting lines of power within the regime	177
An accumulating class linked to the state	182
The ruralization of trade	197
6 Demise of the Dakar textile industry	207
Breakdown of old structures of market control	211
Crisis in the textile industry	221

The state: Captured by contradictory private interests	231
The compromises of Abdou Diouf	247
Conclusion: States, capital, and capitalist states	252
Appendix: Exchange rates	273
References	275
Index	289