

The Finance, Investment and Taxation Decisions of Multinationals

Julian S. Alworth

Basil Blackwell

Contents

List of Figures	viii
List of Tables	ix
Preface	xiii
1 Introduction	1
1.1 The key issues	5
1.2 Organization of the book	6
1.3 Outstanding issues not addressed	9
2 Multinational Companies in the World Economy and the Relevance of Tax Issues	16
2.1 The role of direct investments in the world economy	16
2.2 Basic elements of international taxation	25
2.3 Revenue implications of foreign direct investment	32
3 Systems of Company Taxation	38
3.1 Systems of company taxation	40
3.2 Non-linearities in tax rates and special sources of income	46
3.3 The taxation of portfolio investments	54
3.4 The taxation of inward direct investment	55
4 Double Taxation Relief	67
4.1 The basic parameters	68

4.2	Double taxation relief and the company tax system	72
4.3	Special provisions affecting τ^* and θ^*	81
4.4	Taxation of interest royalties and other 'non-profit income' of international firms	87
4.5	The taxation of portfolio investment income	93
4.6	Foreign currency exposures	95
4.7	Tax havens	100
	Appendix The taxation of direct investment income in the United Kingdom: 1947-85	107
5	The Financial Policy of the Multinational Company	119
5.1	The theory of company finance and the effects of taxation	122
5.2	Capital market equilibrium for the binational firm	124
5.3	The effects of taxation on the choice of alternative financial policies	125
5.4	Intracompany loans and the financial cost of capital	137
5.5	A neutral tax policy	142
5.6	Inflation, exchange rates and the discount rate on foreign investment	144
5.7	Conclusions	147
6	Taxation, the Cost of Capital and Foreign Direct Investment	153
6.1	The user cost of capital and the investment decision	154
6.2	Investment incentives and provisions affecting taxable income specific to foreign direct investment	159
6.3	The estimates of the effective tax rates: the theoretical framework	163
6.4	The computation of effective tax rates	168
	Appendix Computation of input parameters	178
7	The Dividend Payout Behaviour of the Subsidiaries of British Multinational Companies	183
7.1	Theories of dividend behaviour	184
7.2	Variables employed and data limitations	187
7.3	Problems of estimation and specification	192
7.4	Summary of the results	193
7.5	Simulations and conclusions	198
	Appendix The Lagrange multiplier test	201

8	Taxation and the Internal Pricing Policies of Multinational Companies	205
8.1	Trade structure and the importance of transfer pricing	208
8.2	A simplified model of pricing and resource allocation with a multidivisional firm	211
8.3	Taxation, transfer prices and production decisions	214
8.4	Fiscal transfer prices and the production decision	218
8.5	Empirical evidence	225
8.6	Conclusions	226
9	Tax Policy and the Effects of Direct Investment on Economic Welfare	231
9.1	The structure of the international trade model	234
9.2	Small-country model: autonomous factor movements	239
9.3	Small-country model: induced factor movements	242
9.4	The two-country model	243
9.5	Other models of foreign investment behaviour	250
9.6	Optimal taxes and tax agreements	251
9.7	Conclusion	255
	Bibliography	259
	Index	281