

Decentralizing for Participatory Planning?

Comparing the experiences of Zimbabwe and Other Anglophone Countries in Eastern and Southern Africa

EDITED BY P. DE VALK and K.H. WEKWETE

Avebury

Aldershot · Brookfield USA · Hong Kong · Singapore · Sydney

Contents

List of tables	x
List of illustrations	xi
Acknowledgements	xii
Abbreviations	xiii
Map of Zimbabwe	xvi
Map of case study countries	xvi

PART ONE INTRODUCTION

1	State, decentralization and participation P de Valk	3
	Introduction	3
	Relative autonomy of the state and decentralization	4
	The 'benevolent' state and the developmental use of decentralization	5
	Participation	7
	Zimbabwe	9
	Structure of the book	12
	Acknowledgement	13
	Notes	13
	References	14
2	Decentralization and development planning: a comparative perspective D Conyers	15

Introduction	15
Role of decentralization in planning	16
Dimensions of decentralization	19
Decentralization: problems and prospects	27
References	33

PART TWO DECENTRALIZATION AND PLANNING IN ZIMBABWE

3	Constraints to planning for socialism in Zimbabwe
	KH Wekwete	37
	Introduction	37
	Nature of the colonial planning system	39
	The planning system and challenges of the post-independence era	43
	Political structures	44
	Administrative and planning structures at national level	45
	Planning at regional and subregional levels	47
	Problems and prospects of the planning system	48
	Conclusions	49
	Notes	50
	References	51
4	An analysis of planning policy with reference to Zimbabwe
	P De Valk	52
	Introduction	52
	The planning problem	54
	The actors	56
	Problems of planning policy: theoretical limitations	61
	Implementation	69
	Conclusions	70
	Notes	71
	References	71
5	Provincial/regional planning in Zimbabwe: problems and prospects
	KH Wekwete and A Mlalazi	73
	Introduction	73
	Regional planning up to 1980	74
	Regional/provincial approaches since 1980	78
	The 1984 Prime Minister's directive and its implications for provincial/regional planning	79
	Conclusions	82
	Notes	84
	References	85

6	Challenges for local government in Zimbabwe P de Valk and J H Wekwete	86
	Introduction	86
	Historical overview up to 1980	88
	Post-independence district council administrative strategies	90
	Financing district council development	93
	Amalgamation of rural and district councils	94
	Conclusions	96
	References	98
7	The role of external development agencies in district planning in Zimbabwe: a case study of districts in Masvingo province K H Wekwete and S Munzwa	99
	Introduction	99
	External development agencies in Masvingo province	101
	United Nations Bikita district development programme	102
	Comparative perspectives and possibilities for the future	110
	Conclusions	113
	Notes	114
	References	115

PART THREE COMPARATIVE PERSPECTIVES

8	The evolution and functioning of the planning system in Tanzania P S Maro	119
	Introduction	119
	Post-independence period (1961-7): planning for improvement	120
	The Arusha Declaration and planning 1967-72	123
	Transformation of the planning system: the decentralization reform 1972	125
	Re-establishment of rural district councils and the functioning of the present system	132
	Notes	134
	References	135
9	The impact of decentralization on spatial equity and rural development in Tanzania P S Maro	137
	Introduction	137
	The decentralization study	138
	Spatial perspectives of decentralization	140
	Spatial restructuring under decentralization	145
	Villagization and agricultural planning	147
	Provision of social services and equity	157

Summary and conclusions	172
Notes	174
References	174
10 Party and local government in Zambian decentralized planning
1964-85 B L Mwape	176
Introduction	176
The initial phase	177
Prelude to the one-party state	180
The one-party state period 1972-85	183
What change?	187
Conclusions	190
References	190
11 Decentralization and the role of district and provincial planning units in Zambia
D Noppen	192
Introduction	192
Interpretations of the 1980 Act	193
Personnel problems	196
Co-ordination of decentralized planning	199
Strengthening planning at provincial or district level	200
Multisectoral regional planning	202
Conclusions	203
Notes	204
References	205
12 The unification of the local government system in Kenya:
an historical note W O Oyugi	206
Introduction	206
The road to unification	212
Implications of the unification	215
Current integration efforts	219
Conclusions	221
Notes	221
References	222
13 Development planning and decentralization in Botswana
D R Gasper	224
Introduction	224
Centralization and decentralization: institutions and powers	228
Systems of development planning and management	236
Issues and trends in the 1980s	242
Notes	249
References	251

PART FOUR CONCLUSIONS

14 Who sets the rules for decentralization? Who wants to play the game? P de Valk	255
Introduction	255
General review of experiences with decentralization and participation in the case study countries	256
Zimbabwe: decentralizing for participatory planning?	260
Political versus administrative analysis?	260
Final comment	267
Notes	267
References	268
Index	269