

American Horror Film

THE GENRE AT THE TURN OF THE MILLENNIUM

EDITED BY
STEFFEN HANTKE

UNIVERSITY PRESS OF MISSISSIPPI / JACKSON

CONTENTS

vii

INTRODUCTION

They Don't Make 'Em Like They Used To

On the Rhetoric of Crisis and the Current State of American Horror Cinema

—Steffen Hantke

Part One

BLOODY AMERICA

Critical Reassessments of the Trans/-national and of Graphic Violence

3

THE AMERICAN HORROR FILM?

Globalization and Transnational U.S.-Asian Genres

—Christina Klein

15

A PARISIAN IN HOLLYWOOD

Ocular Horror in the Films of Alexandre Aja

—Tony Perrello

35

"THE POUND OF FLESH WHICH I DEMAND"

American Horror Cinema, Gore, and the Box Office, 1998–2007

—Blair Davis and Kial Natale

58

A (POST)MODERN HOUSE OF PAIN

FearDotCom and the Prehistory of the Post-9/11 Torture Film

—Reynold Humphries

Part Two

THE USUAL SUSPECTS

Trends and Transformations in the Subgenres of American Horror Film

77

TEENAGE TRAUMATA

Youth, Affective Politics, and the Contemporary American Horror Film

—Pamela Craig and Martin Fradley

vi	CONTENTS
103	TRAUMATIC CHILDHOOD NOW INCLUDED Todorov's Fantastic and the Uncanny Slasher Remake —Andrew Patrick Nelson
119	WHITHER THE SERIAL KILLER MOVIE? —Philip L. Simpson
142	A RETURN TO THE GRAVEYARD Notes on the Spiritual Horror Film —James Kendrick
	  <h2>Part Three</h2> <h3>LOOK BACK IN HORROR</h3> <h4>Managing the Canon of American Horror Film</h4>
161	AUTEURDÄMMERUNG David Cronenberg, George A. Romero, and the Twilight of the (North) American Horror Auteur —Craig Bernardini
193	HOW THE MASTERS OF HORROR MASTER THEIR PERSONAE Self-Fashioning at Play in the Masters of Horror DVD Extras —Ben Kooyman
221	"THE KIDS OF TODAY SHOULD DEFEND THEMSELVES AGAINST THE '70S" Simulating Auras and Marketing Nostalgia in Robert Rodriguez and Quentin Tarantino's Grindhouse —Jay McRoy
235	AFTERWORD Memory, Genre, and Self-Narrativization; Or, Why I Should Be a More Content Horror Fan —David Church
243	CONTRIBUTORS
247	INDEX